Hottest-ever for 11th, more to come

Some Septemperature!

Vancouver Island Thursday was hot enough to singe the skin and crack a 15-year-old record.

The weather office at Pat Bay Airport recorded 27 Celsius (81 Fahrenheit), two Fahrenheit degrees above the highest temperature ever recorded for a Sept. 11, which was 26 (79) set in 1940 and 1960.

It was also the highest reading this month and one of the warmest temperatures on the continent. Hone and Abbotsford reached 29 at 4 p.m. and Nanaimo 28.

While the temperature overnight at Pat Bay was 9 it seemed mild and that could be accounted for by less humidity than normal, the weatherman said.

The outlook—continued sunny and warm.

Applied technology

Archery comes back into its own in 20th-century technological society after centuries of disuse. Wayne Kinnel, worker at Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s Johnstown, Pa., plant is called upon to relight gas discharged from 120-foot stack with flaming arrow to keep excess coke oven gas from polluting air. Previously, ladder and long wick did job.

Bond yield decreases

OTTAWA (CP) — This year's Canada savings bonds will yield an annual average of 9.38 per cent interest if held for nine years to maturity, the finance department announced Thursday Last year the yield was 9¾ per cent.

Cash purchases begin Oct. 14. The 1975-76 bonds will carry interest rates of 8¾ per cent for the first year and 9½ per cent for the remaining eight years.

Industry, IWA differ on meeting

Coast forest companies agreed Thursday to meet with leaders of the 30,000-member coastal International Woodworkers of America.

But both sides appear to have differing ideas about the purpose of the meeting.

F.I.R. president Don Lanskail said Wednesday in a statement that the meeting, requested by the IWA, will clarify points of the Hutheon report, a recommendation for settlement that has been overwhelmingly rejected by the two striking pulp unions and narrowly rejected by the IWA's 30,000 coast members.

An IWA spokesman told the Colonist Wednesday the meeting was to have discussed ways of improving the Hutcheon recommendations to make them acceptable to the workers.

IWA leaders are less than pleased with the industry's response.

There was speculation that both sides in the contract dispute might be called to Victoria for meetings with Labor Minister William King.

But Reg Ginn, president of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, which has been on strike since July 16, said Thursday he has not been informed of any meeting.

"Where these things come from, I have no idea."

His statement was echoed

Four U.K. spelunkers escape 'death cave'

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — Four British cave explorers reached safety late Thursday night after a five-day struggle for survival in the Vercors mountains "death cave" in which two of their French colleagues died.

The four Britons, exhausted by the slow climb from the flooded underground, emerged into the glare of searchlights at the entrance of the deep cave after spending 135 harrowing hours in the cavern.

Teams of French rescuers helped the Britons make their way toward safety from the depth of the cave, flooded by torrential waters from steady downpours lashing the ground above.

Seventeen rescuers flown to the scene by helicopter descended into the pitch dark, 3,000-foot deep cavern where the four Britons were stranded by sudden underground floods. Two of their French fellow spelunkers died — apparently of exposure — in the group's battle to fight back up from the bottom of the cave.

Muddy floodwaters from heavy rainstorms over the desolate limestone chain in the western foothills of the French Alps carried away much of the Britons' ropes, steel cables and rope ladders, rescuers said.

"The order is to save the Britons at all cost," said rescue commander Fernand Petzl.

Palestinians strafed

Associated Press

Israeli planes strafed and rocketed a Palestinian Arab refugee camp in southern Lebanon on Thursday, killing two persons and wounding five, Lebanese officials said.

They said the attack was on the Borgholieh camp eight miles north of the port city of Tyre, and that it was the third Israeli air raid on the settlement in the last two weeks.

OTTAWA — Just over a year after the Canadian electorate gave his government an overwhelming mandate, Prime Minister Trudeau's deeply-eroded cabinet is tottering toward a major reshuffle.

With the resignation of Finance Minister John Turner the cabinet realignment is expected to result in resignation or shifts affecting at least two other senior ministers.

They are Transport Minister Jean Marchand and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Turner's resignation follows hard on the heels of the loss of Gerard Pelletier as communications minister. Pelletier, like Marchand a close associate of Trudeau for many years, quit Aug. 29 to become ambassador to France.

The Pelletier vacancy was filled from outside cabinet, with the drafting of Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, but Turner's job will be filled, temporarily at least, by Public Works Minister Charles (Bud) Drury, who himself may be leaving soon.

Macdonald, emerging Thursday from a federal cabinet meeting that discussed the Turner resignation, said he plans to make a decision on whether to quit politics within the next 12 months, but that decision might come earlier if he is involved in a major cabinet shuffle.

The minister said he would be reluctant to move to another portfolio now, only to retire from politics within a year.

Macdonald said he told Prime Minister Trudeau last spring he would make a decision on his career this year. He had hoped to make up his mind by the end of the year, but now says it probably will take longer.

"That was on the assumption that there would be no major cabinet shuffle this year and I'm not sure where that stands at the moment," he said.

The 43-year-old minister, caucus leader for the 55 Ontario Liberals in the Commons, said if he does step down it will be to spend more time with his family.

Politics has cut sharply into the time he can spend with his wife and four daughters under the age of 14, the minister said.

He said earlier if he does resign it probably will be to return to law practice. He rejected suggestions he might be considering a move into the executive offices of Petro-Canada, a national oil company authorized under legislation passed this summer but not yet set up.

Meanwhile, Transport Minister Marchand — who has already offered to quit in the wake of an accident scandal — also added fuel to speculation that he will soon leave the transport portfolio.

He told reporters outside the cabinet room that with Turner's resignation, "I have no doubt there will be a shuffle. To what extent I will be affected, I don't know."

Asked whether he wants to leave the burdensome transport portfolio, Marchand said:

"Personally I haven't discussed it with the prime minister and with my own doctor."

The minister has just emerged from about two weeks in hospital here suffering from hypertension.

After a visit to the transport minister, Trudeau said recently that he would talk to

Anderson hints decision in week

Provincial Liberal leader David Anderson said Thursday he should have a decision on his political future early next week.

Thursday night he was scheduled to meet with Victoria constituency members and within the next few days will talk with Gordon Gibson who is being mooted as his successor.

Anderson refused to meet with reporters, but in an interview over the intercom between his apartment and the apartment house lobby he said he wanted to be left alone.

He wouldn't say whether or not he would be stepping down from the leadership to give Gibson a clear run, but did confirm that his future as leader was under serious consideration.

He added that he might have something to say Monday or Tuesday.

Tories see switch for Turner

Canadian Press

The announcement that John Turner has resigned as federal finance minister met with reaction ranging from dismay in the B.C. business community to speculation among some West Coast politicians that he may seek the leadership of the Liberal or Conservative party.

Both B.C. Conservative leader Scott Wallace and Mayor D. H. Macdonald of White Rock said Thursday that Turner could seek the Tory leadership.

"I have heard it said for the last six months that he will end up being the next Conservative prime minister of this country," said Macdonald.

Wallace said there is a strong possibility Turner will seek the Conservative leadership and added he believes Turner supported Conservative proposals for wage and price controls and quit his post because of this.

Governments blasted for 'fuelling inflation'

OTTAWA (CP) — Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal food prices review board, turned on the government Thursday night for failing to provide economic leadership and for "fuelling the pace of inflation" by its own extravagance.

She also attacked provincial governments in general and British Columbia's Premier Barrett in particular for playing the role of villains in the inflation problem.

She singled out Barrett because he has ignored her advice to get directly involved in a pay dispute involving B.C. food industry workers, which she says may force the price of food higher.

The head of the prices watchdog agency spoke just hours after the resignation of Finance Minister John Turner, the man mainly responsible for economic policy during the last four years, and a day after fresh statistics showed inflation running at a rate of more than 11 per cent a year.

"To date, in my view, there has been very little real economic leadership coming from Ottawa," Mrs. Plumptre told the annual convention of the Institute of Chartered Secretaries and Administrators.

Plumptre
. . . Barrett a target

"By the standards of its actions over the last year or so, the federal government actually seems to have been playing a pre-eminent role in fuelling the pace of inflation."

Mrs. Plumptre called for a federal-provincial agreement on a formula for holding down governmental spending.

She suggested a "cost control formula" whereby increases in government pay rates and other costs would be limited to the pace of inflation during a designated period of "economic emergency."

Mrs. Plumptre, 66, told her audience that the text of her speech — released in advance — had been prepared before Turner's resignation from the cabinet became known.

"I very much regret his departure and I wish him well," she said.

But in almost the same breath she criticized "the continuing failure of those elected to a position of public authority to demonstrate economic leadership."

Ford dons flak vest

EXETER, N.H. (UPI) — A bullet-proof vest which President Ford wore throughout a day of campaigning in New Hampshire Thursday was clearly visible through his shirt and from the bulges at the shoulder line of his brown jacket.

Informed sources said Ford wore the vest when he stepped down from Air Force One at Keene, N.H., early Thursday.

The president took his jacket off at a luncheon at the farmhouse of Republican supporter George Brown, and observers described the safety vest beneath his shirt as sleeveless and about a half an inch thick.

The secret service declined comment, and it could not be determined whether the vest was of sufficient strength to stop a bullet fired from a Colt .45 at close range — the kind of gun aimed by Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme in Sacramento, Calif., Saturday.

Ford showed no fear for his personal safety during his day of campaigning, although his secret service agents occasionally winced as women in the crowds would lunge forward in efforts to kiss the president.

Motoring more than 100 miles through the state, he stood up more than half the time in his limousine with the roof pulled back, waving with both arms and exposing the upper half of his body.

It is not known whether any previous president has worn a bullet-proof vest.

Industry, IWA differ over meeting

by a representative of the International Woodworkers of America, who said IWA leaders "certainly have no idea" what the initiatives were that Premier Barrett said Wednesday were close to settling the protracted dispute.

Neither Barrett nor King would comment Thursday on the situation.

The IWA has remained on the job, although most of its members are off work because of picketing by pulp union members or shutdowns of mills choked with chips normally sent to the province's 20 pulp mills.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver, Ginn said the pulp unions are willing to meet the industry to discuss amending the Hutcheon report, but "we don't want to talk about clarification.

"That would be futile," he said.

Hutcheon recommended a two-year agreement with an 80-cent-an-hour increase in the first year and a 75-cent hike in the second.

old contract. In the second year, there would be no cost of-living adjustment unless inflation exceeded 11 per cent a year.

Ginn said the proposal could be acceptable to forestry workers if there was a one-year agreement with the 80-cent-an-hour inncrease plus a regular cost-of-living allowance, or a two-year contract with the $1.55-an-hour boost during the life of the agreement, plus a regular cost-of-living adjustment and the addition of B.C. Day as a statutory holiday.

Some IWA locals are advising their members to find other jobs during the dispute and Ginn said his union has been issuing that advice since the strike began.

About 50 to 60 per cent of PPWC members have other jobs and about a third of those workers will probably not return to the industry, Ginn said.

Many of those who have found permanennt jobs are highly skilled, he said.

Most PPWC locals are not paying strike benefits, he said.

While more than 90 per cent of the coast forest industry now is shut down by pulp union strikes and picketing, there are pos ibilities of contract settlements in the central and southern interior regions of the IWA.

Southern interior forest companies agreeed Tuesday to accept the Hutcheon report in principle. IWA members earlier voted 84 per cent in favor of the recommendations.

A memorandum of agreement was signed Wednesday between IWA Local 1-424 at Prince George and CanFor-Takla Ltd., Northwood Timber Ltd. and Bulkley Valley Forest Industries Ltd.

IWA negotiators Stan Parker and Don Muirhead said the agreement will be recommended to the workers as a settlement.

Details will not be released until members vote on the proposed agreement, probably this week.

Semi-sub oil vessel would smash ice

OSLO (AP) — The Aker shipbuilding firm say it has developed plans for a 250,000-ton, semi-submarine icebreaking tanker that will smash through ice 13 feet thick to transport oil from Alaska's North Slope and Canada's Arctic islands.

The double-hull, cigar-shaped craft will have a knife-sharp bow, 121,000-horsepower steam or gas-turbine engines and breaking power of at least 40,000 tons, an Aker spokesman said.

He said the 1,180-foot-long tankers will cost about $126 million each, triple that of a conventional 250,000-ton tanker.

I HAVE BEEN a follower of Richard Needham's writings for nearly 25 years, which makes me, if not an expert on the man's prose, at least a good camp follower.

He might well be one of the best humorists in print today, might well be one of the sharpest satirists, and he shows a commonsense that is all too rare in the writing fraternity.

I refer you to a recent Needham article in the Toronto Globe and Mail in which he listed a number of belt-tightening measures needed to get Canada and Canadians out of the vicious grasp of filthy inflation. After listing them, he sorrowfully admitted none of his proposals have the slightest chance of being placed in effect. Pity if he is right on that score.

HE WOULD abolish the Bank of Canada and let its functions, including the printing of money, be taken over by the chartered banks, and they would be told to stop printing so much worthless money.

Isn't that commonsense?

He calls for all levels of government to balance their budgets — pay as you go.

That's so dumb?

He looks at the mess we're in due to easy credit and calls for stringent regulations on the buying of consumer goods. He would have it mandatory for a 30 per cent down payment and one year to pay the balance.

They can't put him in a rubber room for that thought.

RICHARD NEEDHAM says the federal, provincial and municipal bureaucracies should be cut in half. Really now, what is wrong with such sanity? A 50 per cent chop of bureaucracies that do not help the gross national product.

He would get government the hell out of business. He would sell off the post office, Air Canada, Canadian National and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, realizing of course that they wouldn't bring much on the open market.

But the reason for selling is simple. They're all ridiculous drains on the public purse and yes, private industry would do a far better job.

HIS ABOLISHMENTS would include the minimum wage (I'll argue against that one) unemployment insurance, welfare, except to those physically unable to work, baby bonuses.

He would freeze wages but not prices and profits. That won't wash. There would have to be an equality of control and the country is in desperate need of tough controls right now. He would abolish strikes for a five-year period, but I think wage and price controls would take care of this situation anyway. In this day and age of teenage voting, Needham would turn it around the other way — no vote franchise until a person reaches age 30.

AND A DIFFERENT method of voting — multiple votes depending on the amount of income tax paid. In other words, the producers of our wealth would have a greater say in the running of the country than those not producing. A radical scheme, yes, but maybe someday we'll have to look at some alternative to the present method. Needham might just be a few years ahead of his time.

He suggests our 30-year boom is over and that we should not expect a resumption of revelry for many years to come. He suggests the malaise of being "entitled" to this, that and everything is nonsense of the past. The cradle-to-the-grave welfare state, socialist state, has, without question, brought about many of our present-day problems.

IT IS PRECISELY this give-them-everything socialistic approach that has weakened the will or resolve of the nation to do things for itself. It's not difficult to perceive many people opting for a standard of living without having to work for it. And this is in no way a condemnation of those who would like to work, but who are down on their luck.

Needham sums the problem up in few words. "We must," he says, "get back to work, order and discipline."

He could have added a fourth — leadership that would follow the work, order and discipline theory.

AS IT STANDS now, not one of our provincial governments and certainly not our federal government, follows such a concept. They are all drifting. They order lengthy studies on every imaginable subject and those studies rarely take less than a year to complete. By the time they are completed, the situation has changed and their findings are no longer applicable.

We could well stand a dose of damn-the-torpedoes, full-speed-ahead — instant action. Some of the decisions would be wrong, but many would be right. Presently we are living without decision makers.

Your good health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A while back you answered a lady with a bladder problem (incontinence) and you suggested some exercise. I believe you should explain the exercise, telling women how it should be done. My doctor, now retired, suggested them for me. He recommended I do them whenever I think of it, sitting, lying down or standing tiptoe. I think if every woman did this simple exercise, there would be less incontinence in old age. — N.K.

The exercise you refer to is the Kegel exercise which consists of contraction of the muscles of the perineum. In females, this is the area between the vaginal orifice and the anus, and in the male between the scrotum and the anus.

The exercise, quite simply, is the alternate contraction and relaxing of the muscles repeatedly as if to stop urination. If you urinate, then stop purposely; that will give you an idea of what the exercise can do.

But in cases of urinary tract infection or structural disorder of the pelvis, the exercises will not help. Persons with problems of incontinence should be checked for such things as allergies and urinary tract infection, and they should ask their doctors about the advisability of doing such exercises in their specific cases.

But Turner move no surprise

Quitting followed by shock waves

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite the warning signals, the resignation of Finance Minister John Turner sent shock waves through Parliament Thursday. Cabinet ministers who said on Wednesday that such a development would be "improbable" and even "impossible" were given the news by Prime Minister Trudeau at a morning cabinet meeting.

"It come as a surprise," the prime minister told reporters, "and I regret it very much."

Since the rumors began gaining intensity late Wednesday, the 46-year-old finance minister had made himself unavailable to reporters. And while Trudeau said the resignation had nothing to do with policy, the retiring finance minister has said nothing.

In his letter dated Wednesday, Turner said: "I have come to the conclusion that after almost four years in the finance portfolio and almost 10 years in the government of Canada, I should return to private life."

He said he would retain his seat in the Commons "until there has been ample opportunity for an orderly transition and to ensure that the electors of my riding (Ottawa-Carleton) retain a voice in Parliament."

Turner, who entered parliament in 1962, has been regarded as one of the bright lights of the Liberal party since he entered the cabinet in 1965, first without portfolio, and then through the portfolios of registrar-general, consumer and corporate affairs, solicitor-general and justice before assuming the difficult finance job in 1972.

The articulate, trigger-tongued minister has been traditionally fast off the mark in replying to questions, and it was regarded as unusual that he was not available to expand on his resignation.

The prime minister discounted reports that Turner sought another portfolio.

"I offered him a number of other portfolios," said Trudeau. "It's my view that he is leaving public life because he wanted to get out of politics."

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield was quick with another interpretation:

"I can't believe that someone of Turner's character would simply resign from a challenge if he felt he was in control of things . . .

"So despite any platitudes by Trudeau or any evasions by Turner, when he surfaces, I have to believe that there is unrest within the cabinet and dissatisfaction within the department of finance."

When the initial reports of Turner's resignation surfaced, many thought it might be a power play for a stronger cabinet hand in dealing with economic issues.

But after he and Trudeau met Wednesday, the prime minister said "I realized he had his mind made up to quit the government.

"He told me he had not made up his mind on what he would do. I don't think he has any specific aim in mind."

There have been various reports that Turner would go into private law practice, that he would accept a position with an international financial institution such as the World Bank or the United Nations.

And while Trudeau says that policy disagreements were not behind the resignation, Turner was known to feel that stronger economic measures were called for in the June 23 federal budget. He even suggested selective wage and price controls — but sources said he was overruled by others in cabinet.

He was said to be frustrated with what he called "the collegiate system," of getting near-unanimous views in cabinet before major economic policies were implemented, believing that a minister in charge of a particular sphere should be allowed to implement policies and stand or fall by the consequences.

Reds urge total test ban

UPI-AP

The Soviet Union proposed in the United Nations Thursday a treaty barring underground as well as all other atomic weapons tests.

The proposed pact would consolidate, supplement and enlarge the 1963 Moscow treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water, and the 1974 U.S.-Soviet pact limiting underground nuclear tests.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko requested the United Nations General Assembly to take up the proposed treaty as "an important and urgent question" at its 30th regular session starting Tuesday.

He said in a letter to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that such a treaty "would be a major contribution to limiting the arms race and thus would promote the further development and deepening of the process of detente and the consolidation of peace and international security."

In Moscow, the Soviet Union announced Thursday it will test missiles in the icy waters of the Barents Sea, in what appeared to put unprecedented political pressure on neighboring Norway, a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The tests Sept. 16 to 27 were timed just before negotiations with Norway over the dividing line in the disputed and possibly oil-rich continental shelf in the Barents Sea.

They also raised the possibility the Soviet Union was trying out a new anti-submarine system.

The designated splashdown area is 200 miles north of Murmansk, the Soviet Union's northernmost warm-water port and base for its mighty northern nuclear submarine fleet.

Under accord worked out by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, still to be approved by U.S. Congress, American technicians are to operate electronic listening posts in Sinai Desert in a new UN buffer zone.

Ex-intelligence official

Middle East war warning ignored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former intelligence official said Thursday he tried to tell U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger that Middle East war was imminent in 1973 but Kissinger aides refused to "trouble" their boss with the information.

Egypt and Syria attacked Israel the next day, Oct. 6, 1973, catching Israel — and the United States — by surprise.

In public testimony before the house intelligence committee, the CIA took the blame for that element of surprise, calling it "a failure of U.S. intelligence" and saying analysts failed to draw the right conclusions from ample evidence the Arabs were about to attack.

An agency spokesman said that evidence included notice the Soviets were withdrawing civilian dependents from Egypt and Syria two days before the attack.

But Ray Cline, former chief of the state department's bureau of intelligence, suggested Kissinger himself was partially to blame for the intelligence breakdown because he held too much power in his own hands and restricted the upward flow of intelligence advisories.

Truckers shatter speed mark

Lebanese troops interposed

BEIRUT (AP) — About 2,000 Lebanese troops occupied buffer zones between warring Moslems and Christians in northern Lebanon on Thursday in an effort to stop their bloody week-long clashes.

Troop carriers and other army vehicles took up positions along three buffer zones between Moslem militiamen in the port city of Tripoli and the Christian village of Zagharta five miles inland.

Army intervention seemed to have been hastened by a threat that sectarian fighting might spread to the nearby Akkar region.

'Sign of deep malaise'

JOHN TURNER'S RESIGNATION from the cabinet of Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau has highly significant implications, damaging to the government and particularly to the prime minister.

The finance minister's resignation is the action of a frustrated and disenchanted man: frustrated at his inability to persuade Mr. Trudeau of the validity of his proposals for the control of inflation and the cure of a sick economy, disenchanted at Mr. Trudeau's lack of initiative in meeting a crisis of mounting proportions.

"For the Trudeau government," writes George Radmanski for the Financial Times, "the implications of Turner's departure are considerable. The minister has built up a potent constituency among businessmen, westerners and Liberals of small 'c' conservative orientation. He has been second only to the prime minister himself in cabinet power and prestige and his resignation may be viewed as a sign of deep malaise within the government."

On that last point there can be no doubt whatever.

As recently as May 10 Mr. Turner warned that unless adequate steps were taken to halt soaring inflation Canada would suffer "economic calamity, massive unemployment and the exporting of industry and jobs to countries where wages are more competitive."

The options, he said, were mandatory wage and price controls, tough budgetary and money supply policies, or a voluntary restraint program.

The government chose to attempt voluntary restraints, something in which the finance minister had little confidence. It is generally believed that he failed to convince Mr. Trudeau that mandatory controls were essential.

It is probable that this disagreement decided Mr. Turner to take the course of resignation. In this way he signals both protest and dissociation from government policy, or lack of it, to protect his own integrity.

When Mr. Turner made his pitch for controls before he brought down the lacklustre June budget, he quoted Denis Healey, his counterpart in the British government, who had been forced to bring in restrictive monetary reforms when voluntary restraints failed: "So long as pay and prices increase at their present rates no chancellor of the exchequer who puts his country first could act otherwise."

Mr. Turner apparently agreed with Mr. Healey that unless a finance minister had the confidence of his leader, unless he could persuade him to apply drastic remedy, in this case the necessary controls, he had no option in honor but to quit.

Mr. Healey won his case. Mr. Turner didn't.

OBSERVATIONS of the new U.S. weather satellite, Nimbus 6, support that school of scientific thought which contends the release into the atmosphere of fluorocarbons of the kind used in aerosol spray cans is a threat to mankind.

A U.S. Senate subcommittee on aeronautical and space sciences was told just the other day that Nimbus 6 instruments have recorded a drop-off in fluorocarbon abundance with increasing elevation in the stratosphere.

This conforms to a theory that the higher fluorocarbons drift, the more they break down, releasing chlorine that, in turn, can damage the earth's ozone shield which absorbs ultra-violet sunlight that otherwise would be lethal to many life forms.

Other experiments, including rocket probes and direct sampling of stratospheric gases by balloon-borne devices and by high-flying aircraft, are said to back up the depletion theory.

However, says a report in the New York Times, there still are doubters: ". . . government specialists are not yet convinced that the actual occurrence of such depletion has been demonstrated."

And no early action is likely on petitions to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to curtail the use of fluorocarbons in dispensing cosmetics, drugs and foods — petitions from the Natural Resources Defence Council and the Environmental Defence Fund, with official support from the states of New York, Michigan and Oregon.

Something might be done next year after the National Academy of Science has issued an assessment of claims which is due in April. If the academy concludes that there is "reasonable probability that fluorocarbons are destroying stratospheric ozone" at least some of the handy spray cans may be banned.

Meanwhile, here in Canada where a team of scientists is working on the question at an experimental station in Yorkton, Sask., sales of the aerosol sprays are down for the first time in 10 years, says a Financial Times report. It cites inflation, as well as the environmental threat, for the drop.

It should be a boon to the mechanical spray pump industry with its finger-operated dispensers that have been available on window-cleaning and other household products for some time.

Reading the writing in the skies, as might be expected in view of the latest claims against aerosol sprays, some cosmetic manufacturers have begun offering "hair-fixers" and deodorants in pump-spray containers.

It might be described as going backward in a forward way.

They wanted Stanfield even less

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Strange thing that Toronto Tory MP James Gillies made such a front page splash and prime-time air blast simply saying what any number of Conservative parliamentarians have known for a long time.

And that is the total lack of organization and the utter vacuum of leadership in the party.

The Conservatives, lamented James Gillies, not only don't know what they stand for, but don't even know where they're going or what they're trying to achieve.

And as every Conservative in Parliament has known ever since Robert Stanfield took over the leadership, the party no longer is conservative in the small "c" sense.

The sense, that is, of encouraging initiative, enterprise, thrift, self-reliance, and of preserving and protecting the values and virtues increasingly scorned as "old," of honesty, integrity and decency.

They have no sense of political direction, he goes on, because anyone can be a so-called Conservative these days.

Robert Stanfield has run such a free and open shop that among the Conservatives in the Commons sit a few members who are well to the left of most New Democrats.

And some on the extreme right would feel comfortable with the wing-collared, morning-coated, silk-hatted Richard Bedford Bennett type of old-time Tories.

So nobody — least of all the voters — during the Stanfield years has known where the Conservatives stood.

Except that the left wing of the party, with the organizational support of Conservative headquarters and the "Toronto Connection" of the backroom boys, has been the most vocal.

The result through three elections has been that the Conservatives have campaigned with the image of Tory socialists.

The majority of them — those on the right and those occupying the middle ground — have been unable to change it.

They could oppose Mr. Stanfield only up to a point without open revolt, and they were unable to smash the control the "Toronto Connection" maintained through party headquarters.

This majority of the elected Conservatives campaigned and won, not so much as representatives of the party, but as individual candidates.

In their case it was the man who got the vote, not the party political label.

Confirming the complaints of Conservative James Gillies, not so oddly, is Liberal Senator George McIlraith.

But first, who is George McIlraith to be talking?

Well, he has been in Parliament as long as the Dean of the House of Commons, John Diefenbaker — since 1940.

He was C. D. Howe's parliamentary secretary.

He served in the cabinet 10 years, first for Prime Minister Pearson, then Pierre Trudeau, before going to the Senate.

He looked over James Gillies' lamentations of a Conservative and said: "The man's right."

"People don't know any longer what a Conservative is — and I don't think the Conservatives know themselves.

"That election last year — we didn't win it — the Conservatives lost it.

"You knew it at the time, you could feel it during the campaign. The voters didn't really want Pierre Trudeau again. But they wanted Robert Stanfield even less. They would have voted for him, and elected the Conservatives if they could have been sure what they were voting for."

So they played it safe, with reluctance, preferring the devil they knew to the devil they couldn't be sure of.

Kissinger on the run

How the shuttle works

The Kissinger shuttle is an imperfect but vital diplomatic device in the continuing effort to achieve peace in the Middle East. In this special article Jim Anderson, of the London Observer whose beat is the U.S. State Department and who has accompanied Dr. Kissinger on all of his Middle East missions, explains how the shuttle works and why it will have to be used again.

By JIM ANDERSON from Washington

Soon after word had been received that the Israeli cabinet had unanimously approved of the interim accord with Egypt, the rotund "senior American official" was sitting in Jerusalem's King David Hotel.

"I have passed strict instructions to the State Department doctor," he quipped, "that if I should propose undertaking another Middle East shuttle, he should have me institutionalized immediately."

The point being made by the "senior American official" — and newspaper readers need little imagination to guess that the official is Kissinger himself — was that the Middle East issues have become more subtle and complex as the adversaries move away from the simple, brutal facts of war. Dr. Kissinger knows that the shuttle could, indeed, become inadequate to cope with all the new complexities. Yet he also knows that there is nothing to replace it yet. So the odds are that the Kissinger shuttle will soon be on the road again.

The shuttle, while it is forever linked with Henry Kissinger's name and style, was actually the invention of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. In January, 1974, when Sadat was recovering from a siege of bronchitis in Aswan, on the upper Nile, Kissinger and his entourage of aides, security guards, and newsmen dropped in on the way to Israel. Kissinger had volunteered his services to mediate in the first stage of a disengagement of force agreement, on the reasonable theory that if the Israeli-Egyptian forces were physically separated, there would be less temptation to shoot at one another. Less shooting might calm the situation, and, anyway, no other negotiating process seemed possible. This simple step could then be used as a fragile platform for further, more substantial agreements, if both sides demonstrated their good will in the first stage.

As Kissinger later described it, Sadat suggested that since the positions of the two sides were so close, it would make sense for Kissinger to finish the deal while he was in the area, instead of travelling back to Washington after every step.

Thus was born the shuttle, which, in its first trial, lasted five circuits between Aswan and Jerusalem. It was followed three months later by the gruelling Damascus-Jerusalem shuttle which went on for 33 days, and involved 13 circuits, plus numerous side trips to Egypt and other countries.

It was argued even then that the shuttle, while it may have been effective, was an unnecessarily dramatic means of conducting traditional diplomacy, and it raised the stakes by having any possible failures take place in the full glare of publicity. The critics of shuttle diplomacy also point out that it is not a coincidence that the Cyprus crisis blew up just a short time after the Damascus shuttle, and that the United States' clumsy and tardy responses to the crisis and the Turkish invasion were a direct result of Kissinger's preoccupation with the Middle East and his shuttles.

But the first two shuttles were pragmatic successes, when measured by themselves. They worked in the Middle East, in a limited way, when nothing else worked at all. Even that argument weakened in March 1975 when the unthinkable happened and Kissinger's third shuttle broke down in failure.

The routine was changed in the next shuttle, as a result, so that the Egyptians and the Israelis flew to Washington in relays, until the second stage agreement was 90 per cent complete (as Kissinger demanded as a precondition for once again travelling to the Middle East). Even so, this most recent Israeli-Egyptian shuttle took six circuits and 11 days.

While the fourth shuttle was successful, some of the arguments over single words and phrases took days to iron out, in direct negotiations and with a flurry of cables from Kissinger in the other capital when he was talking to the other side. For example, one 100-yard strip of territory between the Gulf of Suez and an access road had to be split down the middle, 50 yards to either side, and the access road is to be shared by the two sides using alternate days. Kissinger joked about the negotiations being a race between success and a nervous breakdown.

The strain comes from the peculiar role that Kissinger has to play. He is not a messenger, nor is he a negotiator. His function is something in between: a combination of the honest broker and the trusted elder.

As it is described by officials who have sat in on the shuttle sessions, Kissinger begins by listening to one side's proposal. He knows the other side's position, temperament and domestic problems well enough to say that part of the proposal will not be accepted and therefore he won't transmit it. If the first side does not come up with an acceptable version, Kissinger may suggest a formula that might work. He continues the process with the other side, continually narrowing the differences.

It is dependent on his judgment of the situation, and more important, the confidence of the opposing sides in that judgment.

Backing him up he has a superb communications system, more tireless experts, including geographers and military specialists, and the technical facilities of the U.S. Defence Department. During the last shuttle, when the issue of the strategic Giddi and Mitla passes arose, a philosophical dispute occurred over where exactly a mountain pass can be said to begin. Kissinger produced a needle-sharp aerial photograph taken by an American U-2 spy plane which clearly showed that the pass began where the terrain flattened into a valley, a few kilometres east of the summit, and so that dispute was resolved in favor of the Egyptians.

The cost of the Kissinger shuttles is incalculable, because one would have to include the massive security that is necessary when he travels in the Middle East, and the disruption of government and private business that follows in his wake.

Kissinger's Boeing 707, the crew of 20, his staff on the plane and support staff on the ground cost an estimated $100,000 a day, which puts the basic cost to the U.S. government of his last shuttle at just over $1 million. But that much money, which would hardly buy a medium-sized helicopter these days, would be chewed up in a matter of minutes in a Middle East war. If Kissinger's work avoids or postpones that war, then the cost of his travels must be reckoned as one of the last great bargains.

Kissinger is now thinking of delegating an envoy-at-large to conduct future shuttles, perhaps his faithful Under-Secretary Joseph J. Sisco, who has accompanied him on all the Middle East trips. The problem is that Kissinger has become the standard by which Middle East countries judge their own and others' importance. If someone less exalted than Kissinger were to undertake the next mission, the countries involved would immediately suspect that they and their problems had been downgraded, and were not being given the proper attention.

So Kissinger is probably stuck with the sleepless nights, and endless travelling of the shuttles that have come to be associated with his unique combination of egomania, handy stamina, persuasiveness and intelligence.

It is, admittedly, an imperfect device and everybody, including Kissinger and the bedraggled handful of newsmen who are crammed in the back of his plane, would like to see the shuttles disappear. But there is nothing to replace them.

And so — like an aging actress who keeps announcing her retirement and then reemerges in one more revival — the shuttle will probably remain an active concept until something proven comes along to take its place.

Eton bites the bullet to take paying guests

From The National Geographic Society

Inflation has struck the heart of England's ruling "Establishment." Eton College is being forced to take in paying guests to make ends meet.

"Inflation is entirely the reason," explained Richard Symes-Thompson, bursar of the institution that has been called a nursery of statesmen and the private preserve of the rich and powerful.

It is the biggest crisis Eton has faced since its playing fields were closed — temporarily — in 1959. The sunniest English summer in 200 years had baked the grounds brick-hard, resulting in 35 fractured collarbones, arms and legs of Britain's future leaders.

The playing fields, where the Battle of Waterloo allegedly was won, soon were reopened. But no immediate relief from inflation is in sight, so next year foreign visitors who want to take English lessons will move into Eton's storied halls during summer recess.

Though encrusted with tradition, the school has been receptive to educational innovation and expects to absorb this change with the aplomb that is the trademark of Etonians.

Eton takes seriously the charge of its founder to "excel all other grammar schools and be called the mother and mistress of all other grammar schools." The founder: King Henry VI.

The pious Henry established the "King's College of Our Lady of Eton beside Windsor" in 1440 as a charitable school where penniless scholars were instructed to pray for their king.

The student body is far from penniless now, but Eton still enrolls 70 King's Scholars — called Poor Scholars until 1872 — who pay reduced fees. The 1,100 other boys traditionally have been drawn from the families of Britain's ruling classes, and 18 Etonians have gone on to become prime minister.

The students follow a rigorous routine that puts them in classrooms at 7:30 a.m., before breakfast, and continues through classes, games, and studies until 10 p.m. The regimen has turned out young men noted for their self-discipline, erudition and social grace.

Located on the Thames across from Windsor Castle, Eton attracted the interest of royalty long after the death of Henry VI. The school's favorite monarch was George III, who used to ask Etonians: "Well, well, my boy, when were you flogged last, eh?"

Flogging once was a headmaster's daily ritual to deter rowdies from pelting teachers with everything from books to rotten eggs. One 19th-century "head" thrashed 80 boys in one morning, explaining: "Boys, you must be pure in heart, for if not I will thrash you till you are."

Opposition in any form

Keep, improve good ones

Total controversy surrounds world's zoos

By DAVID ANABLE from New York

"Zoos should be phased out. I don't think that man can justify that form of exploitation of animals."—Alice Herrington, president, Friends of Animals, Inc.

"We are basically a pro-zoo organization. They are institutions necessary for the survival of wildlife."—Susan Pressman, wildlife specialist, Humane Society of the United States.

There, in a nutshell, is how controversial zoos can be — even among humane organizations themselves.

On one side are those such as Friends of Animals, the Society for Animal Rights, and United Action for Animals. They oppose zoos in any form. "Imprisonment for life" is cruel and unjustified, they say, no matter how "natural" the environment.

The only concession they offer is that, while the worst concrete-and-bars zoos should be immediately closed, the better zoos and animal parks should be phased out over a period of time.

On the other side are those such as the Humane Society of the United States, naturalist Roger Caras, and Cleveland Amory and his Fund for Animals: They are critical of poor zoos but favor keeping and improving good ones.

They are convinced that well-run zoos benefit animals by breeding and saving endangered species, and by educating the public about the value of wildlife preservation.

They say that increasing public sensivity has forced real gains in animal care in many zoos over the past five to 10 years. But they admit that zoos still have a long way to go.

"There have been great improvements, and they are coming about at an accelerating rate," says Earl Baesinger, chief of the enforcement division of the U.S. Department of the Interior. "Some of the major institutions now are headed down the right road."

Serious remaining problems include lack of municipal or private funds to replace cramped, old facilities, lack of leadership and imagination in using what money there is, political interference in running municipal zoos, and lack of government controls to enforce higher standards.

Meanwhile, the debate between the pro-good-zoo and anti-all-zoo factions simmers around several crucial disagreements:

Advocates of zoos agree insofar as badly designed zoos are concerned: "Children learn indifference, sadism, distorted views of animal behavior, that animals don't count, that nature stinks," says Roger Caras.

Similarly, the pro-zoo faction is appalled at the "Noah's Ark syndrome": acquiring one or two of as many different animals as possible which the zoos cannot properly care for. And they deplore the lack of imaginative educational displays. (Cleveland Amory cites a sign under tiger cages at the Racine, Wisconsin, zoo: "Siberian tiger: usefulness, pelts for decorative purposes.")

Racine zoo director Emil J. Rokosky says the words 'usefulness, pelts for decorative purposes," have been covered over with tape for more than a year. He also said zoos were trying to preserve animals but expressed concern that "they would all be shut down one day."

But pro-zoo people are convinced that "good zoos," such as New York's Bronx Zoo and the San Diego, California, Zoo, can stimulate respect for wildlife and a desire to preserve it; that films alone are not enough.

- Vandalism. Every year brings new examples of public mistreatment of animals. Amory gives a long list of instances—from the late-night clubbing and killing of animals in the Syracuse, N.Y., Children's Zoo to a tennis ball rolled down the throat of a hippopotamus (killing it).

But the two humanitarian factions draw different lessons from such maltreatment: The antis—that the public does not deserve zoos at all; the pros—that, in Amory's words, "We owe the animals total protection."

- Breeding. Zoo breeding programs reduce the need for capturing wild animals and preserve endangered species. Most pro-zoo people applaud.

But the anti-zoo groups would prefer that a species become extinct when it can no longer survive in its natural environment. Breeding, they say, merely produces an artificial surplus zoo stock for further trading and transport between zoos.

- Confinement. Animals imprisoned for life frequently become mentally abnormal, pacing endlessly, rocking backward and forward, or showing other signs of loneliness, dislocation, and stress, say zoo opponents. Proponents counter that this can be corrected by breeding animals accustomed to captivity and keeping them in spacious scientifically designed habitats.

Anti-zoo people also cite the cruelty and suffering involved in capturing wild animals and transporting them to the buyers. And they condemn research on zoo animals.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR In your opinion...

Property taxes obsolete?

When Victoria homeowners received their property tax bill this year, you had solid proof that local government costs are climbing faster than taxpayers can keep up with them. But, local government services such as roads, utilities and community recreation are the ones which really affect the lives of families.

The quality of these services are more important to most British Columbians, to their quality of life, than many of the services provided from Victoria and Ottawa.

Programs administered by senior governments often become bound in red tape, in waste and mismanagement. They seldom obtain as much value for the money as programs administered at the local level.

There are exceptions. Hospital insurance and Medicare, for example, because of their province-wide nature, must be operated by senior governments. However, the record of the Barrett government is one of increased power to Victoria at the expense of local government and ultimately, at the expense of taxpayers who find their property tax bill soaring at a record rate.

Premier Barrett is fond of proclaiming his concern for local government with the payment of $25,000 plus adjustments to each municipality in the province. This money comes from the government profits on natural gas sales. Premier Barrett's answer to revenue sharing has been insignificant to meet the costs of local government — no more than a public relations gimmick being handed out around the province like an award. And it comes from a tax which is now resulting in higher fuel costs to British Columbians.

The NDP government seems to have forgotten that all government money is your money. This whole sleight of hand operation by Premier Barrett is no better than stealing from Peter to pay Paul.

What would a Social Credit government do?

First, I am committed to expanding the power of local government, to getting Victoria out of local government's hair.

Second, I believe that property taxation has become obsolete as a major source of local government revenue. Many British Columbians will simply be taxed off their land unless new sources of revenue go directly to local government.

During the last session of the legislature, I introduced two Private Member's Bills, the Resource Revenue Sharing Act and the Municipal Consultation Act.

In simple terms, these bills would estabish a speciffic formula, set in advance of local budget preparation, to create a local government share in the major revenues of the province: resource taxation, individual and corporate tax, and sales tax.

Because these funds would be paid under a specific formula, and not by political whim, revenue sharing would become a major new source of local government funds. Literally hundreds of millions of dollars would gecome available under this plan. The impact of this new money would result in a virtual freeze on property taxation. Increased costs of local government would be met from this new revenue source — not from an increase in the mill rate or assessments.

This is a plan which would offer every British Columbian family the opportunity to own a piece of land and a home which they can afford to maintain.

BILL BENNETT,
Legislative Assembly,

Homework on north urged for Bennett

During his recent visit to our northern communities, Mr. Bill Bennett, Leader of the Opposition, made some statements that should not be allowed to pass unnoticed.

In Prince Rupert, on Aug. 28, Mr. Bennett's assistant admitted that an earlier statement by Mr. Bennett concerning the number of public servants in B.C. was totally incorrect.

Mr. Bennett had claimed there were as many public servants in B.C. now as in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba combined.

Unfortunately, as his assistant admitted, he was relying on figures from a Montreal tabloid which did not include large numbers of public employees in the other three Western provinces that are not covered by a collective agreement.

If the figures are adjusted to take this into account, Bennett's original statement is totally false.

In Prince George, on Aug. 26, Mr. Bennett told a radio open line audience that "gold and silver prices have never been higher, yet the town of Stewart is virtually closed because of Bill 31."

When a caller tried to tell Mr. Bennett that Stewart's main product was copper, not gold or silver, he denied it, saying that he had "been up there just recently and they told me it was gold and silver."

All of which must surely be news to the employees of Granduc Mines, I'm sure.

No wonder he told the mayor of Fort Nelson on Aug. 15 that, if elected to form the government, he would "abolish the department of northern affairs." After all, how the heck can you expect a guy to be able to spread misinformation effectively as long as you've got someone around who knows what's really going on?

Mr. Bennett would do well to do a little more homework about the north before highballing through here again. In the meantime, he's living proof that northerners need their own voice in government.

B.C. Tel boost inflated?

I am sending a copy of this letter to the minister of transport, Ottawa.

As anyone with a telephone in B.C. is well aware you have received your notice re 10 per cent interim increase granted by the federal department of transport. Take notice that it is well over 10 per cent. On our phone at a former charge of $5.75 per month the increase is 60c, not 57½c or even 58c. When I called the office in Victoria (after six calls got through to someone who would talk to me) and was informed that the computer set-up could only take figures in the .05 or .10 series.

How come it can accommodate odd cents for B.C. tax and long distance, etc.? Also if you have an extension or more than one service on the same phone number, you are charged the inflated 10 per cent on each — not a straight 10 per cent.

Now check your long-distance call. I had occasion to call my mother-in-law in Regina, Sask., Aug. 4, 1975. When I received the phone bill I questioned the charge — in our phone directory a self-dialled call on a weekday to Regina, Sask., is listed at 70c per minute. The person I finally got through to at the Victoria business office informed me that the long-distance rates had gone up too — and I might add that there is no mention of that in our friendly little 10 per cent increase card. The rate to Regina self-dialled call is now 85c pre minute, which is more than a 20 per cent increase on the old rate.

These few cents may not sound like enough to squabble over, but when you multiply them by the number of subscribers in Victoria alone it comes to a sizeable sum each month, and I might add for the poorest phone service in Western Canada — maybe all of Canada, but I am not familiar with Eastern Canada.

Also we moved July 1 and were assigned a number which is listed in the current telephone directory. I am answering my phone day and night for people calling that number. I have called the B.C. Telephone business office and directory assistance to get the new number of that subscriber but to no avail. If they have chosen to have an unlisted number, which can't be given out, that is their business and I don't think I should have to be plagued constantly with their calls.

Where I work we use Distacom pagers, and invariably when I call the number I get a recording that the number is no longer in use — the second time I dial the same number the call goes through. We have the push-button phone system at the office (supposedly better and more costly) and at least one-third of the calls we make have to be dialled twice — and when it rains that's a real panic, all the problems are blamed on the rain.

Surely to goodness with all of B.C. Tel's high-paid and supposedly smart workmen, they should be able to install phone lines that won't be affected by a rain storm. I shudder to think of what the rainy season — soon to come to Victoria — will bring for the telephone service.

In closing I want to say that everyone should only pay the 10 per cent interim increase granted by the department of transport and also be aware when the other 10 per cent is awarded, as it surely will be, that you are not paying 10 per cent again of the already inflated 10 per cent increase. The application to department of transport was for 20 per cent — a healthy increase in this day of runaway inflation, inferior service and products.

Wooden sidewalks next step?

No wonder some people in the concrete business are not too happy with the prospect of wooden foundations. I just paid $15 delivery charge for one and a quarter yards of mix for a sidewalk. There was no extra time involved. This was a straight delivery charge for a two-block journey.

Maybe householders and others should investigate the possibility of wooden sidewalks returning, too?

Something radical must be done

Something must be done to keep the labor unions from controlling the economy of Canada.

One thing that could, at least, avoid strikes of long duration, would be to have the employer make his top offer at the start of negotiations. If the union refused this offer would it not be a help if the employer reduced the amount of his offer by one per cent per day (figured to the nearest penny), every day that the union members were on strike?

If this was done the people who were on strike for 100 days would find themselves right back where they were when the strike started.

This sounds radical, but something radical must be done, of the labor unions will be in control of this country.

Marchand after he left hospital about a possible move. The prime minister said he was leaving the question of a cabinet move open.

Marchand would neither confirm nor deny reports that he will move to a less onerous cabinet job shortly after the opening of the new Montreal airport at Mirabel early in October.

And, there has also been speculation that Drury, 63, is considering leaving the government after 12 years.

Jack Austin, Trudeau's principal secretary, was relegated a month ago to the Senate in the midst of controversy about his outside business affairs.

Pierre O'Neil, the prime minister's press secretary, has taken a teaching job in Senegal, West Africa.

Early this year, a string of senior public servants quit — deputy ministers Simon Reisman from finance, James Grandy from industry, S. B. Williams from agriculture — partly to take advantage of a pension break. A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs, has been sidelined by illness. And Jim Davey, a friend of Trudeau and responsible for a new transport policy, was killed in an accident last month.

Taken together, the departures have contributed to an atmosphere that even government supporters refer to as uncertainty and malaise around a government that received a majority mandate from the electorate just 14 months ago.

Part of the malaise seems to be reflected in the apparent inability of the government to get moving in Parliament on promised measures to deal with a string of serious issues.

Liberal MP Herb Gray, dropped from the cabinet after the last election, says the government has shown itself to be "unresponsive" to a broad range of challenges from the growth of foreign investment to the explosion of food prices.

Beryl Plumptre, the Trudeau-appointed head of the food prices review board, decided in her own words Thursday night that "it's time to speak out" and denounced the government for what she termed a failure in leadership in the face of economic emergency.

Some critics, including sympathetic ones, attribute some of the apparent loss of spirit within the government to the public buffeting it encountered last winter and spring on two fronts.

These were the substantial pay raises voted to MPs and ministers, and the disclosures of high spending in the prime minister's home and office, including the $200,000 swimming pool, at a time when the government was urging the public to exercise restraint in pay demands and spending.

Attempts by the government to bounce back, to repair the injuries of recent months will be made more difficult by Turner's resignation — the departing finance minister embodied for many sections of the country the cabinet's most forceful element of businesslike stability.

Tories see switch

B.C. Conservative party, said the resignation "shows that Mr. Turner shares the same concern for the economy as the Conservative party." He said he assumed Turner and Prime Minister Trudeau fell out on the issue of wage and price controls.

Premier Barrett said he was personally disappointed over Turner's resignation.

"Not that Mr. Turner and I saw eye to eye on every issue, but I had an excellent working relationship with him," said Barrett, who holds the provincial finance portfolio. "He has always been forthright and we exchanged our opinions very frankly with each other. Canada has lost a good person from public life. He was a person who had strong opinions and stuck to them, something I think that is very important in political life.

"I wish him well."

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) said "if Trudeau stumbles there'll be another (Liberal) leadership convention and Turner can offer himself as a knight in shining armor."

David Anderson, leader of B.C. Liberal party, said he believes Turner wants to make sure that in a leadership vote he is not associated with every cabinet decision made in the difficult years ahead.

"He's frustrated and fed up and I think he wishes to point out that he's not going to carry the can," said Anderson. "He wants to be smelling of roses."

William Hamilton, president of the B.C. Employers' Council and former Conservative minister, said Turner "held a balanced view of economic matters" and he would prefer seeing him continue in the cabinet post.

Ernest Richardson, chairman of B.C. Telephone Co., said Turner's decisions always were based "on integrity and high principles — attributes which served him well on the national and international scene."

Income tax on property?

PENTICTON (CP) — Local government should have a place on income tax forms, Mayor J. T. Mowatt of Nelson told the annual Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention here Thursday.

Every income tax form should have a space for municipal taxation in addition to federal and provincial categories, he said.

Mowatt told a panel discussion on local government finance that replacing property tax with income tax as a method of funding municipalities would help elderly people on fixed incomes who are struggling to pay off their home mortgages while bearing the burden of municipal taxes.

Current provincial loan programs are not efficient, the Neson mayor said.

Recently the west Kootenay city completed a water system addition which cost $12.50 for each tax parcel. The loan of $500,000 was completed on a six-year basis with the help of the UBCM's financial arm, the Municipal Finance Authority.

Mowatt said if the city had used the provincial government's 20-year lloan program for water improvements, the loan would have cost Nelson taxpayers $220 for each parcel.

He said the provincial government should have short-term loan programs for municipal improvements. One possibility would be to allow individual municipalities to sel debentures. The MFA completed an $11 million debenture issue Sept. 2.

Languages Act likely unchanged

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's controversial Official Language Act Bill 22 won't be changed and regulations governing its implementation will probably not be modified, Premier Robert Bourassa told a news conference.

But Bourassa nonetheless left the door open for future changes in the regulations, noting that Education Minister Jerome Choquette was studying problems caused by the integration of immigrant children into French schools.

Bourassa had harsh criticism for the massive petition being organized by Montreal English-language radio station CFCF calling for the repeal of Bill 22.

"This type attitude contributes nothing to better understanding between different ethnic groups and it's a very negative attitude which won't help us find the solution to the complex problems facing Quebec," he said.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, the Parti Quebecois blamed "confusing and discriminatory" clauses in the province's Official Language Act for conflicts over language rights in education.

Rene Levesque, president of the party, and Jacques-Yvan Morin, opposition leader in the Quebec national assembly, said the plight of Italian students refused entry to English-language schools underlined the total failure of the Official Language Act.

Levesque attacked the Bourassa government for imposing language competency tests to determine which immigrant children might attend English schools.

He said the tests discriminated between immigrants from different countries and said the PQ proposed instead that all newcomers to Quebec, including those from other parts of Canada, be required to enroll their children in French-language schools.

The chief whip of the provincial Liberal party has called on Springate to resign from the party.

Amid growing dissent from backbenchers, Louis-Philippe Lacroix said Springate's attitude toward the language legislation made him unworthy to sit as a Liberal member of the assembly.

Lacroix said Springate's comparisons of language regulations with conditions in Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union were "unacceptable."

Sommet Rouge... it has to come of age before we blend it.

The distinctive European taste of Sommet Rouge comes largely from a French hybrid grape now grown in BC's sun-drenched Okanagan Valley. Wine from this rare grape is matured in oak casks in the winery's cellars until it "comes of age". Then, and only then, is it carefully blended with fully aged wine from imported premium California grapes, bottled and corked. The result is a robust, dry red wine that has put Sommet Rouge in heavy demand wherever it is sold.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market recorded its fifth consecutive decline Thursday pushing prices to their lowest levels since mid-April. Trading remained light.

Analysts attributed the decline to unsettled market conditions, including higher interest rates and inflation. They said the resignation of federal Finance Minister John Turner had little effect on stock prices.

"The market was already headed lower," said Ian Notley, trend analyst with Draper Dobie and Co. Ltd. of Toronto. "The trend was already set but the resignation may have accelerated the decline."

Roger Keane, an economist with Midland Doherty Ltd. in Toronto, said Turner's resignation from the Cabinet may have had a slightly negative influence on stocks but "a lot of other issues are clouding the market."

Realty Capital A fell 25 cents to $2.70. The company said it has decreased its quarterly dividend on class A shares to 2½ cents from 7½ cents a share payable Oct. 1.

Home Oil A fell 1¼ to $24¾, Northern Electric 1 to $26, Bell Canada ⅞ to $42½, Falconbridge Nickel ¾ to $31¼ and Stelco A ¾ to $30¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Fears of a further rise in interest rates pushed the New York Stock Exchange downward for the third straight session Thursday.

But the decline was less severe than it had been Tuesday and Wednesday, and trading slowed to its lightest pace in more than three weeks.

NYSE's composite index was down .16 at 44.36.

The principal topic of attention on Wall Street was the U.S. treasury's announcement late Thursday that it was raising its estimate of the funds it would need to borrow through the end of the year by $3 billion to $6 billion.

Speculation continued that New York's First National City Bank might increase its prime lending rate Friday morning from 7¾ to 8 per cent. Citibank, New York's largest commercial bank, frequently is in the forefront of prime rate trends.

Among Canadian stocks on the NYSE, Dome Mines fell ⅞ to $38⅞. Campbell Red Lake and Hiram Walker each dropped ⅝ to $22⅞ and $29½ respectively.

Seagrams was down ½ to $29¼ and Canadian Pacific ¼ to $13⅝. Hudson Bay fell ¼ to $188½ and International Nickel ⅛ to $26¼.

Massey Ferguson was up ⅛ to $16⅛.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER — Prices were off in light trading Thursday on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.30 million shares and curb trading was 613,965.

Canterra led the industrials after suspending trading for a day Wednesday and closed Thursday unchanged at $1.07 on 116,000 shares.

The day's halt of Canterra trading was because of the company's announcement of a further postponement in the closing of its deal with Days Inns of America Inc. until Sept. 30 to allow it to carry on negotiations for a merger with a Toronto development company. The company's name was withheld.

Grain for oil?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prospects for "a bushel for a barrel" — bartering grain for oil — apparently will be discussed in Moscow during negotiations on a possible long-term agreement for selling American grain to the Soviet Union.

President Ford seized on the idea Thursday, confirming earlier indications the administration was thinking along the lines of AFL-CIO President George Meany and other labor leaders who first discussed it.

Ford, who sent an emissary to Moscow Wednesday to negotiate a long-term grain sale agreement with the Russians, told a reporter in Keene, N.H., in reference to the talks:

"I think it's a good deal not only to sell it (grain), but it's conceivable — it's possible — that we can use wheat in the negotiations for oil, and I would not rule out the possibility that that might materialize."

The grain-for-oil idea is based on the fact that the United States, the world's largest grain producer, needs a secure long-term supply of oil. And the Soviet Union, the world's largest oil producer, needs to make big purchases of grain in year's like this one when its own crop fails.

The idea nonetheless puzzels some economists who are familiar with Russian oil production and the old classroom precept that "barter is not a good way to trade."

They note the Russians have only a minimal amount of oil for export. Of the 9.6 million barrels produced daily in Russia in 1973, only 900,000 barrels were exported beyond the Communist bloc nations.

Dismay expressed

'Business people trusted Turner'

OTTAWA (CP) — The business community reacted with dismay and anxiety at the resignation Thursday of Finance Minister John Turner, considered its chief ally in the federal cabinet.

Stock prices dropped at the Toronto stock exchange and a few analysts attributed the decline to investor uncertainty due to the resignation.

"I'm depressed . . . A voice of reason is leaving the cabinet," Ernie Steele, former civil servant and now president of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada, said in Ottawa. Steele was treasury board secretary and under-secretary of state before leaving the civil service in 1968.

"There is a hell of a lot of respect for John Turner. Business people trusted John Turner's judgment. They know some of the fights he has had in cabinet trying to curtail government spending."

Harold Corrigan of Toronto, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association CMA, said Turner's departure is a "loss to the government and to the country."

Corrigan, president of Alcan Canada Products Ltd., said he admires Turner's "clarity of thought and intellectual honesty . . . He certainly understands economics and what business is all about."

John Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said in Calgary tht the minister's resignation is a "great loss for Canada." Although the industry had disagreements with the government over taxation of oil companies, "we always found him to be an honorable, intelligent person.

"I think he exemplified what I would call a moderate Liberal, and I mean that as a compliment," Poyen said.

Walter Lawson, immediate past president of the CMA, said Turner had been a good minister of finance, generally implementing sound and timely policies.

Lawson, vice-president and general manager of Domtar Packaging Ltd., Montreal, said Turner's "efforts to arrive at a national consensus on ways to fight inflation were not entirely successful, but he helped greatly to clarify and identify the problems."

Jerry McAfee, president and chief executive officer of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., said:

"I think Mr. Turner has served this country and its economy very well."

W. D. H. Gardiner, deputy chtirman and executive vice-president Royal Bank of Canada, said the business community had great confidence in Turner.

As the next provincial election draws ever nearer, the administration is tending to keep its options open a bit longer. Latest evidence of this lies in the recent developments in that very field — options.

Options trading for B.C. residents was among subjects discussed here Thursday by Cyril White and George Sherwood, president and chairman of the board of the Vancouver Stock Exchange respectively and Superintendent of Brokers William Irwin and associate deputy minister for Corporate and Financial Services, Dennis Sheppard.

The fact that there was discussion is newsworthy in itself as last Spring when the subject first came up Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said:

"I'm agin it."

"It's premature to make any announcement," Sheppard told The Daily Colonist after the meeting.

"However, the possibilities of allowing options trading have advanced," he admitted, adding that he hoped that there would be an announcement next week.

The turnabout in the A-G's attitude is the result of a more Canadian flavor in the entire proposal. The Toronto and Montreal exchanges just last week moved nearer to creating a single options clearing corporation, which is a bit ironic in that the idea of an options market came out of the Vancouver Exchange.

Options trading to date, for residents other than those of B.C., has been through the Chicago Board Options Exchange.

Last July the Toronto exchange was going to have 25 Canadian stocks on its list and the Montreal exchange was to have 15, all of which were also listed in Toronto.

However, Toronto's most recent reassessment lists only four primary stocks for consideration: Moore Corporation, Imperial Oil Ltd., International Nickel Co. and Alcan Aluminum Ltd.

Under options trading, the investor would take an option on a number of shares to either buy or sell them at a certain price with expiration months of January, April, July and October. As in commodity futures trading, he wouldn't necessarily take ownership of the stock.

Commenting on what now appears to be progress in the establishment of such trading in B.C., James Bassett, Vancouver Island chairman of the Investment Dealers Association Pacific division, said:

"I'm glad to hear it. It can be a very effective method of investment in the hands of a good money manager."

He went on to say that if such trading is established in B.C., it won't boost market activity all that much but will enable investors to take part in a segment of investing that has been denied them to date.

Bassett said that the trading in the Chicago market has been a good learning experience leading up to the establishment of a Canadian options market.

Gerald Corlett has retired from the Toronto-Dominion Bank after 46 years in the business. His position in Vancouver as vice-president and general manager of the Pacific division has been taken by D. E. McGeachan.

McGeachan, who formerly held the position as western division general manager in Winnipeg, was introduced to the Victoria business community here this week.

Trade missions are taking wing again. A six-member party of B.C. food manufacturers left Thursday for a two-week tour of Europe with the purpose of eeking out export markets and observing techniques.

Next Tuesday seven other manufacturers of such diverse products as clothing, housing and drilling equipment depart on a three-day visit to Alaska.

The trips have been arranged by the B.C. Department of Economic Development.

Mini-Rolls best of two

LONDON (CP) — Retired chauffeurs' Bert and Bob Panting have built their own mini-Rolls-Royce. Using the best part of two old Austin Minis, they fitted it with a scaled-down Rolls-Royce radiator grill. It was finished in royal blue, carpeted throughout in a thick grey rug and rust-proofed.

Turkey to curb opium growth

Mortgage futures approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commodity Futures Trading Commission approved Thursday a new futures contract for trading in home mortgage-backed certificates guaranteed by the federal National Mortgage Association (NMA).

Commission Chairman William Bagley said that the unprecedented contract granted for the Chicago Board of Trade is unique because it has "a definable social benefit" as well as an economic purpose.

He said the contract will help stabilize interest rates for home financing by allowing financial institutions to transfer to investors the risk resulting from changes in interest rates during the formation of mortgage pools and sale periods.

The unit of trading will be $100,000 worth of mortgage-backed certificates guaranteed by the association, commonly known as "modified pass-through certificates" bearing an 8-per-cent interest rate.

The major originators of mortgage loans are savings and loan associations, commercial banks and mortgage bankers. Last year those institutions closed loans totalling $84.4 billion.

A total of only $450 million in such certificates had been issued by the end of 1970, but the market had expanded by the end of last year to bring that total to $13 billion.

Nanaimo freeman, Sir Denys dead

LONDON (Reuter) — International financier Sir Denys Lowson, a former lord mayor of London who last year was accused of grave business mismanagement, died in London Thursday after a long illness. He was 69.

Sir Denys' financial brilliance made him one of the wealthiest men in Britain and his commercial empire, based on shares in about 100 companies, extended from Canadian railroads to Australian sheep and cattle.

But his reputation suffered a severe blow last year when government inspectors found he had made an estimated £5 million profit by buying shares from companies of which he was chairman for 60 pence sterling and selling them six months later for £8.67.

Born in 1906, Sir Denys qualified as a barrister in 1930 and built up a position in London business circles during the next decade.

In 1950 he became the youngest modern lord mayor of London at the age of 44.

Sir Denys received his baronetcy the following year. He was a freeman of four Canadian cities and also held decorations awarded by five European countries. Nanaimo was one of the cities.

Carlings buying brewery

TORONTO (CP) — Carling O'Keefe Ltd., of Toronto and National Brewing Co., of Baltimore, Ohio, are holding discussions that might lead to the companies joining in the United States, it was announced Wednesday.

Wilmat Tennyson, president of Carling, said: "The discussions involved the prospect of purchase by Carling O'Keefe's United States subsidiary, of the brewing assets of National."

J. C. Hoffberger, president of National, has agreed to become chairman and chief executive officer of the U.S. company.

The two companies agree all existing brands of both companies will continue to be sold.

Carling O'Keefe owns more than 99 per cent of the shares in the Carling Brewing Company Inc., in the U.S.

Ford's price hike bit more than GM

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. Thursday said price tags on the base 1976-model cars in the U.S. will be raised an average $216, just $10 above a similar price jump by industry leader General Motors.

However, the boost on an average equipped vehicle was put at $247, or 4.7 per cent, some $21 below the similar increase at G.M. The increases are on top of price boosts that averaged close to $1,000 a car in the past two years.

To minimize the price boosts that many industry executives feared would trigger a third straight year of slumping sales, Ford removed an average of $138 worth of standard equipment from its cars, leaving it to customers to decide if they want the options.

Foster parents want girls back

SASKATOON (CP) — Marcien and Rita Doucette of Prince Albert have applied to adopt three former foster children who have been returned to Saskatchewan following a two-month stay with prospective adoptive parents in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Mrs. Doucette, in a telephone interview from Prince Albert, said she is so happy the children are back in Saskatchewan "I could jump for joy."

She said she is still uncertain whether the children will be returned to Prince Albert, but with a review of the controversial adoption case to be initiated by Social Services Minister Gordon Snyder, she believes there "is still a chance."

Wednesday Snyder announced the return of the three children to Saskatchewan, saying they had been removed from the Ann Arbor home at the request of the adoptive parents.

The children, Harold, Eileen and Geraldine, were removed from the Doucette home after the social services department decided, on the basis of the couple's experience with three older foster children, that the home did not offer an adequate environment for teen-agers.

The children are in a temporary home in North Portal, near the Saskatchewan-North Dakota border, where they are to remain until their future is decided.

Doucette said she had received three letters from 12-year-old Harold and one from 10-year-old Eileen while they were in Michigan. All four described the children's desire to return to the Doucette home, she said.

Snyder said in a telephone interview from Regina the continuing communication between the Doucettes and their former foster children may have affected the children's ability to adjust to their new surroundings.

Crash victim dies

A 46-year-old Victoria woman died in surgery Thursday afternoon less than four hours after receiving severe head injuries in a two-car collision in Central Saanich.

Police in Central Saanich said Mrs. Sanjit Mann, 1018 Kenneth, was fatally injured shortly before 12:30 p.m. in a collision at the intersection of Central Saanich Road and Mount Newton Cross Road. She died in the operating room of Royal Jubilee Hospital shortly before 4 p.m.

Her husband, Sawarn Singh Mann, 49, and Reed Pumple, 20, of 9150 Jura Road, received minor injuries. Police said Pumple was driving one of the cars and they were not sure which of the Manns was driving the other.

It was the second traffic death this year in Central Saanich, which has never had a year with three traffic fatalities.

Saturday meeting spots land issues

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Stuart-Trembleur Indian band, the B.C. railway and the provincial government have tentatively set Saturday as a meeting date to discuss compensation for land taken by B.C. Rail to build its Dease Lake extension.

The blockade was erected April 28 to back up demands for $7 million in compensation and a three-for-one land exchange. It was lifted for two months on condition that the government, the railway and the Indians could sit down for negotiations.

Band spokesman Ed John said Thursday that the three sides have tentatively agreed to hold the meeting at Fort St. James Saturday.

Nicklaus won't compete because of death threat

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus said Thursday he will not play on the United States World Cup golf team in Bangkok, Thailand, because of the hazardous political situation in that country.

Asked if he feared for his life, Nicklaus replied:

"That's it. That's the reason I'm not going. It's that simple.

"It would not be fair to my family if I played there."

Earlier in the week the International Golf Association, sponsor of the 50-country World Cup competition to be played Dec. 3-6, announced that Nicklaus had withdrawn from the two-man U.S. team because of previous commitments.

But Nicklaus told a news conference that the turbulent political situation in the southeast Asian country was his real reason for declining a spot on the team.

"We didn't want to make a big thing out of it," Nicklaus said.

"At one time they thought about trying to move the tournament out of Thailand. I told them that if they wanted to use me as a wedge to get out, to go ahead. But the decision was made to stay in Thailand.

"I told them to handle it any way they wanted to and they put out the release saying I had previous commitments. Well, that's true. I've got business meetings the day after the matches. But you ask me if that's the reason I'm not going and I'm not going to lie to you. That's not the reason.

"I'd prefer that the story not be written, but I won't lie. The state department has been involved. I just don't want to make relations more strained than they are.

"I wouldn't mind playing. But playing there at this time as a representative of the United States, well, it could be a very unpleasant and potentially dangerous thing."

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., and Bill Tape of Woodbridge, Ont., will represent Canada in the competition.

Nicklaus, a seven-time representative of the U.S. on the World Cup teams, gained an automatic spot this year when he won the Professional Golfers' Association national championship.

Lou Graham, the U.S. Open champion, is the other automatic choice. Johnny Miller, the 1974 player of the year and the 1973 individual winner in the World Cup, was named to replace Nicklaus.

"With all the things going on over there now, it just wouldn't be fair to my family if I played," Nicklaus said.

"Golf has a reputation as a rich man's game. It's a rich, capitalistic sport. I think it would be a natural target and I think I would be a natural target.

"I just don't think it would be very wise for me to play."

Elder blisters Pinehurst par

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Lee Elder, in slump since his appearance in the Masters this spring, mastered the No. 2 course at Pinehurst with a six-under-par 65 for the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 World Open golf tournament.

"His iron play was phenomenal," said Ed Sneed, Elder's playing partner on the 7007-yard, par-71 layout in the Carolina sandhill country.

Elder, 41, didn't make a bogey, needed only 28 putts and had good birdie chances on eight of his last nine holes in his best round of the year. In addition to his six birdies, he missed once from five feet, had three chances in the 8-to-10-foot range that got away and missed four others from 12-to-15 feet.

Elder held a two-stroke lead over Tom Weiskopf, veteran Rod Funseth, Pat Fitzsimons and rookie Danny Edwards, bunched at 67.

Lee Trevino, held up some 20 minutes by a thunderstorm, birdied his last hole for a 69.

Jack Nicklaus birdied all of the par-five holes and made a 25-foot putt for a deuce but bogeyed three of four at one stretch for a 70.

Defending champion Johnny Miller and Arnold Palmer, who just passed his 46th birthday, had 73s, two over and eight shots back.

VANCOUVER FORWARD Mike Smith opens scoring in Thursday's Mann Cup senior lacrosse series in Vancouver, putting ball past Brampton goalkeeper Harry Woods early in the first period. Vancouver scored 16-8 win to sweep best-of-three series.

Burrards charge to Mann Cup win

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards won their first Mann Cup senior lacrosse championship in eight years Thursday night when they defeated Brampton Excelsiors 16-8 to win the best-of-three series in two games.

The Burrards jumped into a 7-2 lead after the first period and were in complete command by the end of the second as they led 13-4.

The Western Lacrosse Association champions got three goals each from Bill Rawson and Bob Salt. The 210-pound Salt had been a dominating force during the WLA final against Victoria Shamrocks and was named the most valuable player of the WLA playoffs.

Four players — Mike Smith, Ron Pinder, Gord Frederickson and Mel Brown — scored two goals each for the Burrards. Other Vancouver goal scorers were Dick Crompton and Rico Bellusci.

Pinder and Salt both finished with seven points as Pinder had five assists and Salt four.

Brian Robinson led Brampton with four goals and two assists. Mike O'Brien, Bob Burke, Chuck Williams and reserve goaltender Bill Moreau scored the other goals for the Excelsiors.

Moreau entered the game in the third period and scored the last goal in the final minute of play, beating 38-year-old Don Hamilton in the Vancouver goal. The 4023 fans gave the Burrards a huge ovation at the end of the game. The Burrards last won the Mann Cup in 1967.

Vancouver won the first game of the series 11-10 in overtime Tuesday night on a power-play goal by Frederickson.

Smith scored his first goal only 66 seconds after the opening faceoff and the Burrards were off and running. By 1:43 Vancouver led 3-0 and the pattern of the game was set.

Brampton used all three of its goaltenders. Harry Woods started and played in each period. Gary Drysdale saw action in the second and third periods and Moreau in the third.

Rookie Pat Safianuk played most of the game for the Burrards, giving way to Hamilton near the end of the game. Hamilton recorded the only shutout in Mann Cup history when he blanked Brampton 13-0 in 1961.

Pinder was named the most valuable player of the Mann Cup series and said after the game that Montreal Quebecois of the professional National Lacrosse League has asked him to join them for the balance of the season. He said he hadn't made up his mind.

Rawson played the game with cracked ribs, but still gave the Burrards a solid performance, doing much of the running when Vancouver played shorthanded.

Safianuk and Hamilton combined to stop 35 shots, while the three Excelsior goaltenders stopped 30 shots.

Lions drop Wintermeyer

Murphy released rookie Canadian place kicker John Wintermayer and filled with Lorne Watters, a Canadian linebacker cut last week.

Lions also brought in two National Football League cuts on five-day trials. Otha Bradley, a late cut from the San Diego Chargers, and Mark Cooney, who was axed by Green Bay join import linemen Eugene Clark and Ray Baylor, as well as defence back Luther Howard, on five-day trials.

Both Bradley and Cooney are defence linemen.

Brewers hire Mathews

Veteran hurlers sparkle

Veteran pitchers Louis Tiant, Jim Palmer and Jim "Catfish" Hunter displayed strong form Thursday as the three leaders kept pace in the American League East.

Tiant pitched a three-hitter and first-place Boston Red Sox downed visiting Detroit Tigers, 3-1, and Palmer and Hunter, both former Cy Young Award winners, went the distance in earning their 21st victories.

Palmer, 21-10, scattered nine hits and second-place Baltimore Orioles trounced the Indians, 10-2, at Cleveland while Hunter, 21-13, pitched a six-hitter as third-place New York Yankees whipped Milwaukee Brewers, 10-2, at New York.

Tiant, who hadn't started since Aug. 30, had a no-hitter going until the eighth inning when Aurelio Rodriguez singled on a two-out 3-2 pitch.

Tiant retired the first 14 batters, issued a base-on-balls to Bill Freehan and then retired nine in a row before giving up the single.

Detroit's run came on a homer by Bob Baldwin in the ninth inning.

Meanwhile, the Brewers, who are 10-32 since Aug. 1, announced the signing of Eddie Mathews as a scout and minor league instructor.

"I'm very enthused about coming back to Milwaukee," said Matthews, who starred at third base for the Milwaukee Braves from 1953 to 1965.

Matthews led the National League with 47 home runs in 1953 and 46 in 1959 and played in 12 all-star games. He is tied for ninth on the all-time home run list with Ernie Banks.

In the National League East, Mike Schmidt and Dave Kingman hit their major league-leading 34th home runs helping Philadelphia Phillies gain a game on first-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Schmidt homered in the fourth inning and Philadelphia moved to within five games of Pittsburgh by winning a rain-shortened, 5-0 decision over the Expos at Montreal.

At Pittsburgh, Kingman homered in the fifth inning and Jerry Koosman pitched a six-hitter as the New York Mets blanked the Pirates, 7-0.

Cougars, Oil Kings considering trade

A high-scoring intra-squad game, more player cuts and the possibility of a trade with Edmonton Oil Kings.

That's what went on Thursday as Victoria Cougars continued their training camp at Juan de Fuca Arena for the upcoming Western Canada Hockey League season.

About 700 fans were on hand for the first of two intra-squad games and they saw holdover winger Curt Fraser score twice in the final minute to give the Blues a 7-7 tie with the Whites. Holdover Danny Lucas also scored twice for the Whites and rookie Gary Lupul of Powell River, holdovers Ken Bueckert and Tim Williams scored a goal apiece.

Holdovers Gordie Roberts and Kim Hilkewich, newcomer Jeff McDill and rookies Alvin Moore of Prince Albert, Greg Anderson of Saskatoon, Jim Slater of Nanaimo and George Fritz of Victoria scored for the Blues.

Game time tonight is 8 p.m. at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Manager-coach Pat Ginnell released five players Thursday, bringing the training camp roster to 56. Included in the cuts were winger Dave Morris of Edmonton, younger brother of Cougar-graduate Peter Morris, and goalkeeper Mark Romankiw of Anchorage, Alaska.

Ginnell also talked with Edmonton general-manager Don Scott about the possibility of 19-year-old Terry McDonald joining the Cougars. The stocky rightwinger, who scored 16 goals and drew 46 assists for the fifth-place Oil Kings last season, has indicated to Scott that he wouldn't report to training camp and wanted to be traded to Victoria.

"Edmonton wants a big rightwinger," Ginnell said, "and Scott has promised to call me soon about a trade."

Cougars are deep in rightwingers with Lucas, holdover Rick Martin, McDill, and outstanding-rookie Rod Guimont, who played for the Cougar-affiliated Nanaimo Clippers of the B.C. Junior Hockey League last season. And there are a number of 19-year-olds in camp who have asked to be traded to another WCHL club rather than reporting to the Clippers.

Scorpions work out

Victoria Scorpions of the Dogwood Senior "A" Men's Basketball League have their first practice schedule tonight.

Anyone interested in playing at the senior "A" level can attend the workout which starts at 7 p.m. at Henderson Park Pavilion.

Howard Tooby, who coached the team to a first-place finish and into the B.C. finals last season, is back at the helm and most of last season's players are expected to return.

Caribous triumph

QUEBEC (CP) — Jimmy Higgs and Dave Durante each scored three goals and drew three assists Thursday night as Quebec Caribous defeated Long Island Tomahawks 15-11 to take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Lacrosse League semi-final playoff.

Brian Wilson and Terry Sanderson each had two goals for the Caribous with Murray Cawker, Jim Gow, Travis Cook, Bruce Murdoch and Russ George getting the others.

The series resumes tonight in Long Island while Montreal Quebecois face Boston Bolts in the other semi-final in Montreal. The Bolts lead that set 3-1.

Claimer driver penalized

Rick Carlson only has to wait on the sidelines for one more race meet.

The Victoria claimer driver was handed a two-race suspension and a $50 fine by the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association this week.

Carlson, who is in second place in the point standings, has already missed one race and will miss Saturday's race to fulfill the suspension.

Carlson received the suspension two weeks ago. He started an altercation with super-stock driver Gary Kershaw after a super-stock main event in which Kershaw's 69 Chevelle bumped Roy Haslam's Chevelle. Carlson wasn't in the race but was watching from the stands and was angered by the incident.

The quick-acting VITRA executive handed him an immediate suspension and then finalized the terms of the penalty Wednesday.

Fortunately, Carlson has two more chances to try and regain the points lead he held prior to the suspension. The season was scheduled to end Sept. 20, but has been extended to Sept. 27 when the super-stock and claimer championship races will be held.

Bill Bartley leads the claimer division with 888 points, 38 more than Carlson, while Rick Haskell, who led the division for most of the season, is third with 841.

In the super-stock division, Fords are bucking the open-super stock trend and leading the division. Tony Johnson has his 64 Ford in first with 1273 points, Neil Montgomery holds second in his 62 Ford with 1132 and Bob Collins has third place in his Ford Thunderbird with 945.

Saturday's time trials begin at 7 p.m.

St. Michael's to the rescue

School soccer roundup

Kuyvenhoven
. . . league director

By REG REYNOLDS

Henry Kuyvenhoven has the Inter-high School Soccer League running smoothly again.

The league director's plans for the upcoming season had been thrown off balance when coach Franz Desombes announced this week that the Dunsmuir Demons wouldn't be able to field a team.

That left Kuyvenhoven with nine teams in two divisions and the prospect of either having some teams play fewer games than others or of returning to a one-division league with a 16-game schedule.

The 16-game format was unpopular with some of the coaches and last season Victoria High's Ash Valdal almost pulled out of the league in a dispute over the long schedule.

But Kuyvenhoven found a solution. He invited St. Michael's University School to replace the Demons and the highly competitive private school eagerly accepted.

St. Michaels still needs the approval of the sports council, but Kuyvenhoven said most of the coaches believe it is a "great idea" and he doesn't anticipate any problem in getting the private school into the league.

St. Michaels would play in Zone II with Spectrum, Oak Bay Bays, Claremont Spartans and Esquimalt Dockers while Zone I is comprised of Reynolds Roadrunners, Vic High Tyees, Mt. Douglas Rams, Parkland Panthers and Belmont Braves.

Each team plays 13 games, two against each team in its own division and one against each team in the other division.

The schedule opens next Friday with Spectrum playing host to Esquimalt, Parkland at Reynolds, Mt. Douglas plays the Tyees at Vic High, Oak Bay hosts Claremont and Belmont plays St. Michaels.

Following is a team-by-team analysis.

Dan Hood
. . . top scorer

Zone I

Reynolds

With coaches Kuyvenhoven and Tony Fantillo the Roadrunners have won two straight league championships and have made the Colonist Cup final twice, winning in 1973, but losing to Spectrum last year.

The Roadrunners were unbeaten in league play last season, posting a 13-0-3 record, but they have been hit hard by graduations and have lost starting goaltender Gord Reading to Spectrum.

Gone are 20-goal scorer Greg Booth and 17-goal man Drew Finerty, and key backs Mike Hardy and Jim McHaffie.

Seven-goal scorer Keith Thompson is back along with Mark McNally-Dawes and Eric Jones and Tony Den Otter is an experienced goaltender ready to take Reading's place.

Victoria

Valdal's Tyees have been hit hard by graduation, but turnouts for practice have been good and although they're not likely to be as strong as last year, Tyees should be able to take the second-place in Zone 2.

John Spadafora, a seven-goal scorer last season, is back along with Henry Wong, Murray McCaig, Rob Logisci and John McMillan.

Mount Douglas

Coach Brian Cornall expects to have a strong defence anchored by backs Ross Main and Derry Donaldson and goalkeeper Bruce Gray.

Parkland

Panthers surprised many teams last year and Joe Milligan says this season he's getting more experienced junior talent moving up.

Mike Nauss, a 10-goal scorer, is gone, but Rudy Henry is back along with Shane Griffey, Stu Montgomery, Greg Tredgett and Steve Akam.

Belmont

Belmont had an off season last year, finishing in last place with only two victories in 14 games.

Coach Terry McKellar says they'll be much better this season but many players are gone through graduation and it will probably take some time to get the Braves winning again.

Zone II

Spectrum

Good enough to win the Colonist Cup last year, Spectrum has almost all its players back and some fine additions.

The orange and black horde from the new community school, which was known as Mt. View until 1974, is the team to beat this season.

Coach Joe Bekkers has all but four of last year's players returning including Dan Hood, who led the league in scoring with 24 goals.

Bekkers has Julius Karpati, his goaltender last season, returning but Karpati will play in the field this year.

Others returning are Doug Vincent, Stu Holroyd, Dave Shephard, Dalgeet Ghag, Terry Pollock, Wayne Reeves, Dale Marshall, Stu Rose, and Mike Wallace.

Reading transferred to Spectrum because it isn't on the semester system like Reynolds, and it's closer to his home.

Oak Bay

Last season was a rebuilding year for the Bays, but they still managed a fourth-place finish and put up a strong battle against Reynolds before bowing out in the playoffs.

This year most of the players are back and the Bays should be second only to Spectrum in over-all strength.

Big Dave Richmond is back to anchor the defence along with goalkeeper Scott McDonald, and top returning forwards are eight-goal man Pete Zachary and seven-goal scorer Rhys Smallwood.

Mid-fielders returning are Grant Olson, Charlie Fisher, Mike Miller and Paul Monoghan, and Mark Boli, a link for Vic High last season, has moved over to take advantage of Oak Bay's semester system.

Claremont

The Spartans have one their most successful coaches, Andy Bryant, back at the helm and he has a large group of holdovers to work with.

Bryant coached the strong Claremont teams of the mid-60s and has taken over from Colin Ruffles, who has become sponsor of the outdoors club.

Two of Bryant's former players, Russ Ball and Joe Milligan, are now coaching against him in the inter-high league.

Esquimalt

Coach Russ Ball has a fine crop of grade 11s up from the Highrock junior high championship team and he says the team has a much improved attitude this season.

Ball is optimistic and the Dockers should improve on last season's performance, but they probably aren't strong enough to overhaul the top teams this year.

Top first year men are Jamie Ross, Al Anderson, Scott Matheson and Paul Kirby.

St. Michaels

Coach Stan Hubert hasn't had time to hold a practise since learning that his team had been invited to enter the league.

He said Thursday that he wouldn't know how the team was going to shape up until the middle of ntxt week.

But although drawing from a small senior class, St. Michaels athletes have a reputation of being keen competitors and well-conditioned athletes.

Hunters this weekend may find a lot of their favorite areas closed because of the fire hazard. Only a heavy rain can ease the planned closures by logging companies.

The Crown Zellerbach gates at Cowichan Lake and the Nanaimo Lakes will be shut unless there is rain. But the road to the Nitinat River campsite and Tuck Lake will be open.

At Cowichan Lake all the logging roads off the North Shore Road — Cottonwood Creek, McKay Creek, Shaw Creek and Marguerite Creek — will be closed.

As of Thursday morning, it was still planned to allow hunter access in the Sooke area, but hunters are cautioned to be careful of fire in the woods, hunt in the early morning and be cut of the woods before the heat sets in, not to light fires, and refrain from camping in the bush. If the warm spell continues these roads could be closed by the weekend.

Deer hunters had a fairly good opening last weekend.

Most everybody saw deer, even if a lot of them were only does and fawns which weren't in season. A big part of the experience of hunting is roaming through the bush and observing nature. Bagging of game is really only the incentive that takes most hunters into the bush.

Cowichan Lake area was the interesting surprise on opening weekend with a 12.7 per cent hunter day success average, compared to 7.5 per cent last year.

Even more surprising was that the Cowichan Lake area where deer stocks have been on the decline for several years produced the big animals this year — four and five pointers, with at least one dressing out at 181 pounds.

Some 234 hunters were checked through the Mesachie Lake game station.

This year, the whole of the Cowichan Valley will be closed all season to antlerless shooting, a big victory for fish and game club members who have been crying out for years against shooting of antlerless animals.

North Island area provided some good deer bags with an overall average of 8.6 per cent per hunter day.

The Adam-Eve River area was the up-Island hot spot with 267 hunters bagging 58 bucks for hunter success of 14.7 per cent.

This should be a good weekend for coho fishing in the Sooke-Becher Bay waters.

The commercial netters moved out of Juan de Fuca Strait Sunday and a decision won't be made until today when they will go back out, probably Sunday.

That means there have already been five net-free days for the fish to swim the 45 miles to the comparative safety east of Sheringham Point. The coho run had been building at the entrance to the Strait and they should be plentiful in Sooke waters by the weekend.

Thursday morning, Becher Bay fishing started to pick up with some limits of coho — the first to get through the net-free area during the current net closure. There will be more each day until the nets go out again.

Off Beechey Head, fishermen were getting them on green and white hootchies and anchovies, 50 to 100 feet of line and two pounds of weight.

Oak Bay, Victoria and Sidney waters will share in the improved fishing as the salmon move along towards the rivers.

Porlier Pass has been giving up some coho.

About 200 yards out from the government wharf has been the spot where moochers and trollers have been taking big chinooks in Cowichan Bay. A few coho have been seen jumping along the Cherry Point shores.

George Gunniss found bucktailing pretty hot in Deep Bay waters.

Some coho have been taken off the Comox Bar, but the area has been spotty.

The shoreline from Bates Beach to Campbell River has been "really good" and at Campbell River, the best method has been mooching with small cut plug or whole herring. Deep Six planer and Minnow Teaser has been taking the coho.

Alberni Inlet has been good for tyee and the coho are showing all the way up to Cous Creek. Best tyee areas have been Franklin River, along the rock bluff, San Mateo and Sarita.

"This is probably the most important Shell product I sell"

A top quality motor oil like Shell Super Multigrade is a kind of insurance–low-cost protection for your automotive investment.

It protects that major investment in a number of very important ways:

1 It helps minimize wear on highly-stressed engine parts.

2 It helps to reduce the build-up of harmful sludge and varnish deposits in your engine which can starve the bearings of oil and cause excessive wear.

4 For sustained high speed or heavy load driving Shell Super Multigrade contains an ingredient that prevents foaming.

5 Shell Super Multigrade contains additives to resist oil thickening under hard driving conditions, so it continues to do its job of cooling and lubricating the engine.

6 Short trip service can lead to engine rusting. Shell Super Multigrade is formulated to combat engine rust.

When you consider how much a top quality motor oil does–and how little it costs–can you think of better value for your money today?

Shell Super Multigrade meets the warranty requirements of virtually all late model cars–and older cars as well.

When your car is due for an oil change, or if you simply need a top-up, ask your Shell dealer to make it Shell Super Multigrade. It's a good investment for long engine life.

Cec earns selection for trip

TORONTO (CP) — Kitchener golfer Gary Cowan, standing firm on his long-standing decision to play only select tournaments, has been left off Canada's Commonwealth Trophy team competing in South Africa later this year.

The team, to compete in the Commonwealth tournament at Durban Nov. 18-22, was named Thursday by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and includes two Vancouver golfers — Canadian amateur champion Jim Nelford and Doug Roxburgh.

Also making the trip will be Robbie Jackson of Montreal, Ken Tamke of Edmonton, Dave Webber of Dartmouth, N.S., and Cec Ferguson of Victoria.

Accompanying the team to South Africa will be RCGA president Jack Haywood of Saskatoon and executive director Bruce Forbes of Brantford, Ont., the non-playing team captain.

Shack back

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Former National Hockey League player Eddie Shack has signed a contract to play senior hockey with Orillia Terriers.

The president of the Terriers, George MacConachie, said Thursday that the Ontario Hockey Association team has signed Shack to a one-game contract as the playing coach for an exhibition contest Sept. 27 against Oklahoma Blazers of the Central Hockey League.

The Terriers did not go after Shack at first to play just one game "We went after him to be the coach of the Terriers for the entire season. He had to turn us down because of other business committments," said MacConachie.

Czechs stay

ORNSKJOLDSVIK, Sweden (CP) — Toronto Toros left Thursday for a brief tour in Finland, but Richard Farda and Vaclav Nedomansky, the World Hockey Association team's exiled Czech stars, remained in training camp due to kidnapping threats.

"We know that there is an agreement between Czechoslovakia and Finland that Czech exiles will be returned to their native land by Finnish authorities," said Farda, "that's why we refuse to play in Finland."

Farda and Nedomansky, both forwards and former members of the Czech national team, joined the Toros a year ago after a successful escape while on vacation in Switzerland.

Registration on Saturday

Oak Bay Figure Skating will hold its registrations on Saturday and not today as previously reported.

The registrations will be held at Oak Bay Senior Citizens Hall on Monterey Road from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Bengals accept modified rule

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals have voted to accept a modification of the Pete Rozelle rule and also come up with 100-per-cent membership in the National Football League Players' Association by the second game of the season, if the association can work out a contract with the owners.

"We feel if a guy is unhappy in a city, he should have a right to move," said a source, a player who asked to remain anonymous. "We didn't want to come out for or against the thing since the Rozelle case looks like it might be in court for three more years."

He said the Bengals have agreed to come up with $300 each for NFLPA membership, with the total going into escrow. It would be turned over to the association only if a contract were settled.

Meanwhile the Bengals, who have few dues-paying members in the NFLPA, last week declined to cast votes and make a stand on the rejection of the latest offer by club owners.

"We'll be drafting a team statement, so we really have nothing to say until that's completed," said veteran centre Bob Johnson, who is serving as team spokesman, but is not a member of the NFLPA.

The Bengals, one of the first teams to cross the picket lines during last year's 42-day strike, have only about 10 dues-paying member, says Johnson.

The main impasse, Johnson said, appears to be opposition to the Rozelle rule, which allows the commissioner to set compensation for a team losing a player who has played out his option to another team.

Paul Brown, the Bengals' coach and general manager, expressed mild surprise over the NFLPA's rejection of the owners' latest offer.

"I hadn't heard a word about it, from my players or anybody," Brown said.

He said he doesn't believe owners will bend to pressure to have the player limit increased from the 43-man level, but he also doesn't believe another strike is in the offing.

Roadrunners add Dean

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oilers have traded Barry Dean, their first choice in the World Hockey Association junior draft this year, to Phoenix Roadrunners for two 1976 draft choices.

Edmonton general manager Bill Hunter said negotiations have been carried out for several weeks. Because the Oilers expected to lose Dean, a graduate of Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Hockey League, they drafted Bill Evo from the defunct Baltimore Blades franchise.

Dean was also drafted by Kansas City Scouts of the National Hockey League.

Sittler blasts Ballard

TORONTO (CP) — Centre Darryl Sittler wasted no time demonstrating that he intends to be a forthright, outspoken captain of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, teeing off on the club's president moments after his appointment was announced this week.

Sittler criticized Harold Ballard for the way he talked about veterans Dave Keon and Norm Ullman after it was decided they no longer fitted into the team's plans.

"I thought the Keon and Ullman situations were handled very barly," Sittler said "I know Mr. Ballard is noted for being outspoken but in this case I thought it was dead wrong. I didn't think it was necessary to come out and say publicly that the Leafs had no further use for Dave Keon and Norm Ullman and were getting rid of them because they were washed up.

"These are guys who had done a lot for the Toronto club and I thought they deserved more consideration.

"You don't see that sort of stuff happening in Montreal, for instance. Canadiens might trade a veteran or he just might not appear at training camp. Or he might retire. But the team would never announce that so-and-so is all through and there's no place for him."

Keon, 35-year-old former Leafs captain who played 16 seasons with the team, has gone to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association. Ullman, 39, left after eight seasons and is negotiating with Edmonton Oilers of the WHA.

Sittler said he didn't want to suggest that the decision to let the two centres go was wrong.

"It was time to give George Ferguson and Jack Valiguette a real shot at centre. But I think it could all have been done in a different way so that everybody would have felt better about it."

Although the role of captain in hockey has often been regarded as a figurehead position, Sittler indicated he would like to emulate Bobby Clarke, who wields real influence with Philadelphia Flyers.

"It's not secret there's been poor communication between coach Red Kelly and most of the players the last two seasons. As captain I can do something about that. In a meeting I had with Red he indicated he wanted me to."

Racers sign Stapleton

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Veteran Pat Stapleton was signed Thursday by Indianapolis Racers, the World Hockey Association team announced.

Details of his contract were not disclosed.

The Sarnia, Ont., native, along with team-mates Dave Dryden and Ralph Backstrom and a lawyer associate, bought the Chicago franchise last year but were unable to make it a paying proposition.

Stapleton was also an all-star defenceman during his eight years with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1975

Priceless art survives shock

Tragedy almost struck a priceless collection of Japanese art for the second time when it arrived in Victoria from New York City Thursday.

"We are very, very lucky nothing was destroyed — this time," Kazuaki Hatano, manager of the collection on its North American tour, said later.

The collection of religious art which Hatano described as "irreplaceable, priceless," escaped damage in a freak accident at about 1:30 p.m.

Saanich police said the collection was being transported to Victoria in a North American van lines truck driven by Eric Stanton of New York.

Stanton was to deliver the collection to Johnston Terminals depot behind the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia's Douglas Street claims centre, police said, but he mistakenly drove his rig onto the ICBC lot.

When he tried to leave the lot, the top of his trailer struck electrical wires leading to the ICBC offices, pulling at least one of them down and onto the fuel tank of the tractor.

Stanton was afraid to attempt to leave the rig while the 220-volt live wires were in contact with its metal body.

Saanich police and fire department crews stood by until B.C. Hydro crews removed the wires, then allowed Hatano to inspect the cargo.

The collection, insured for $200,000, was unharmed.

Hatano said he had not been so lucky when the collection was being cleared by customs in New York late last year.

A careless workman there had ripped an eight-inch-wide gash in a painted rice paper panel after mistaking it for wrapping paper, he said.

Edmonton murder case

Victoria author fights for justice

By KING LEE
Colonist Reporter

Bruce Olsen sits in his living room on Burnside Road while Keith Latta sits in his cubicle at William Head federal prison.

Olsen is a 33-year-old mathematics teacher at Belmont high school while Latta is a 47-year-old prisoner at the medium-security institution in Metchosin, found guilty of murder in 1971 and sentenced to life.

The connection is a book titled A Matrix of Evidence and the hopes of both author Olsen, a former teacher at William Head, and subject Latta for a reopening of the case.

The case involves the murder of Latta's business partner, Bob Neville, in Edmonton on June 13, 1971. An Alberta jury convicted Latta, an appeal was dismissed by the Alberta appellate division, and the Supreme Court of Canada refused to review the decision.

"The law is finished with this case," said Olsen, who moved to Victoria with his wife Pat eight years ago from Edmonton. "The thing that I want is a new trial for Latta. His legal recourses are just about over."

Recently, however, Attorney-General Otto Lang agreed to review the case.

In his book, Olsen theorizes that Neville, a prominent Edmonton travel agent, was shot to death by underworld interests trying to collect at least half of a $30,000 Las Vegas gambling debt.

Olsen thinks Neville was shot in his downtown office on the fateful Sunday when he became belligerent and that Latta, a law professor at Queen's University in Kingston and in a back room at the time of the shooting, panicked, leaving Edmonton that day for Kingston.

Olsen states in his book that the discovery of Latta's fingerprints on material in an Edmonton bus depot locker was the main evidence used by the prosecutor.

Using that as a basis, the crown went on, in Olsen's view, to point to a $75,000 partnership life insurance as the reason Latta killed Neville.

"Once you take the view, as the crown did, that Latta did it, you can turn all the evidence against him," Olsen continued. "The insurance played no part at all. The partnership insurance was put on years before the crime took place. They made big news over the double-indemnity clause."

When Edmonton police arrived at the crime, one of the things they found was a piece of paper with an elastic band tied around it. On it was a scruffily-drawn map of downtown Edmonton showing, among other things, the bus depot. Inside the map was a key to locker number 55.

A search of the locker produced a five or six-day-old Calgary Herald, two newspaper clippings with Neville's picture circled and a small leather pouch containing .32-calibre bullets, 22 live rounds and 18 spent shells, an Italian-English dictionary and a map.

Latta's palm print and fingerprint were taken off one of the newspapers and the map.

"If the prints hadn't been there, there would have been no ostensible connection between Latta and the murder," Olsen insists.

Olsen
. . . revived case

"He's a very competent lawyer," Olsen added. "The man is a supreme court judge (in Alberta) now. But he made a bad tactical decision."

Olsen's theory about the $30,000 gambling debt is supported by a statement from a woman acquaintance of Neville's. In a statement to police on Dec. 5, 1972, she said she was with him in Las Vegas when he ran up the debt. Her statement, Olsen says, never came to Latta's knowledge until May 8, 1973.

Olsen says the reason he wrote the book wasn't because he looked at Latta and decided the man couldn't be a murderer.

"I did it because I feel there is a great deal wrong with our criminal justice system.

"This case illustrates virtually every problem our judicial system has.

"By and large, we get pretty good results from it, but that doesn't mean it's perfect.

"If this had happened prior to 1967, he would have been on Death Row. That really bothers me."

On the subject of life insurance between business partners, Olsen had a bit of advice.

"If you have buy-back, partnership insurance and your partner gets killed, you'd better be having tea with the pope."

Latta came to William Head in 1973 from Drumheller Penitentiary, Alta., and it took six to eight months before he felt he could confide in Olsen.

Olsen decided to make his first try at writing a book just before he and his wife took a holiday to Fiji last summer.

Obtaining thousands of pages of documentation and all the material Latta could get for him, Olsen developed the book in something close to nine months.

He financed the printing of the 245-page story himself because he felt that time was important.

"I'm sure that Macmillan and Co. could have sold more books for us, but they couldn't do it quickly."

Victoria apartment conversion

99-year lease circumvents veto

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

A 128-suite apartment building is slowly moving off the Victoria rental market into long-term lease accommodation and there is little the city — which has the power to reject conversions — can do about it.

Under a section of the new Landlord and Tenant Act proclaimed in August 1974, municipalities have the right to approve or reject all conversions of rental units and leases of more than three years.

The owners of Villa Royale, 964 Heywood, leased the building to Despard Construction Ltd., which in turn registered 99-year leases on all the suites prior to proclamation of the provincial legislation.

A city official said council had already turned down an application to convert the building to condominiums but is apparently helpless to do anything about the long-term leases.

Last month, tenants received a letter from realtors Whyte and Gower stating the company was acting as agent for the sale of the 99-year leases.

The letter offered tenants the opportunity to purchase their suites in their present condition at a 10-per-cent reduction untill Oct. 1.

About five vacant suites are being refurbished and are offered to the public starting at about $19,000.

While the letter lists the assurance of "permanent tenure" as one of the advantages of purchasing the leases, it goes on to state:

"The owners wish to assure you that you are under no compulsion to purchase the leasehold interest of your suite and you may remain on as a monthly tenant on the existing terms and conditions under which you occupy your suite subject to rental increases and other changes that may occur."

One Villa Royale tenant reported that the letter caused some panic, particularly among older tenants who feared Despard would evict them rather than wait until the suites become vacant before offering them to the public.

Liberal leader David Anderson whose riding includes Villa Royale will meet with tenants today to assure them that they are protected under provincial legislation.

But a spokesman for the Rentalman's Office in Vancouver said Thursday that tenants aren't entirely assured of permanent rental occupancy.

He said the lease could be sold separately and if the purchaser wanted to move in, the tenant had 60 days to vacate upon notification.

"It would be pretty hard to get in and get a look at them," he said of the rental tenant-occupied suites.

D. G. Whyte of Whyte and Gower told the Colonist Thursday his company had no instructions from the owners to sell the leases on the occupied suites. He said the lease owners were very conscientious about not disturbing the current tenants.

City policemen hold breath in pact verdict

There will be a brief hiatus before any major developments arise in city of Victoria negotiations with its public safety unions.

The provincial Labor Relations Board will probably take about two weeks to make a decision on whether the city is bound by the agreement worked out between the police union and the city police board.

In fire department negotiations, the appointment of an arbitrator who will make binding recommendations on that contract dispute will be left to the provincial government.

The city and firefighters union were unable to agree on an arbitrator in the 10-day statutory period, union president Ross Cameron said Thursday. The time limit expired Thursday.

The firefighter local, which had been contemplating strike action, chose instead to have the despute settled by binding arbitration, a choice the firefighters have under the labor code.

The Labor Relations Board ended two days of hearings Wednesday night on a charge brought by the police union that under the Police Act, the city is bound to accept the settlement reached by the police board which bargains with the union.

Union president Sgt. Pat Braiden said Thursday night that if the board rules in favor of the city, "there are many options open."

But whatever tactics are agreed on, they won't be predictable, Braiden added.

There could be a strike, but the union hasn't considered any action past the board ruling.

Action taken by Victoria police officers will be supported by every municipal police officer in the province, Braiden said, "because if we don't have a contract, neither will any other police force in the province."

"If the board rules against us, it will mean that there is no collective bargaining process in the province for police," he said.

Braiden accused the city of making the police union a pawn in its fight with the provincial government.

"They are only interested in a confrontation with the provincial government," Braiden

Alberni cable licence okay

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission has announced its renewal of the cable television licence of Alberni Cable Television Ltd., serving Port Alberni, until March 31, 1979.

L.I.P. grant sought to rehabilitate addicts

A 38-year-old Victoria handyman is seeking $45,000 in federal funds to help him start a workshop for alcoholics and other drug addicts who want work while trying to kick the habit for good.

Paul Evans, of 989 Londonderry, says the project will employ 10 instructors including himself and should involve between 10 and 20 students.

Evans is hoping federal Local Initiative Program financing will cover a start-up period of seven months.

After that the workshop should be self-supporting from the sale of products made by the students.

Evans' L.I.P. application has the support of a variety of officials from social agencies including the Victoria Halfway House Society, the Salvation Army, the Community Action Group, the B.C. Alcohol and Drug Commission and the provincial human resources department.

He hopes to get the workshop started by the end of November but says it's no use seeking a site until funds are assured.

Assistance cheques early

Family allowance, old-age security and Canada Pension cheques are being delivered early this month in Victoria, apparently because of a postal strike threat.

Family allowance cheques, not usually delivered until the 19th of the month, have either been delivered or are on the way in Victoria, while security and Canada Pension cheques will be delivered to homes within a day or two.

According to a post office spokesman, the request to handle monthly mailings ahead of schedule came from Ottawa, but no reason was given.

However, it was assumed labor problems in the post office were behind the move and national health and welfare wanted to avoid hardships for families and individuals if postal service is interrupted.

The post office in Victoria normally handles more than 500,000 family allowance, old-age security and Canada Pension cheques and a similar number of Mincome, B.C. medical plan and ICBC cheques each month.

MP's really giving us the message

Er, wrong.

What you do is write him at his Ottawa office, and the mail will be rerouted back to catch him in Victoria.

That, um, is the way the Colonist interpreted the cheerful, if cryptic, message from Donald Munro's office in response to a phone call Thursday to his office at 5320 Parker.

Dial and you will get the following recorded message:

"Presumably you are looking for Donald Munro, your Member of Parliament, or Lynn.

"We have had to go back to Ottawa for a week or 10 days and we won't be back until the, er, about the 16th or 17th of, um, of September.

"If you need me during the next week you can get in touch with me — um, no, I think the best thing to do really is to drop me a note at my office in Ottawa and I will, er, have it forwarded to me when I return here.

"So if you need to, er, get in touch with me, send me a letter in Ottawa.

"The members of, um, those who are running the constituency offices are going off on their holidays, too, so it will not be easy for the next week or 10 days to get in touch with us, and I think if you just drop a note — you don't even need a stamp, just write to me in room 559, Confederation Building, Ottawa, and I'll get it.

"Thanks for calling."

Um.

Sunshine brings open fire ban

Warm weather has brought a ban on open fires in Langford, fire chief Allan Lequesne said Thursday.

All permits for open rubbish fires issued during the wet August period have been cancelled. Incinerators, Lequesne said, must be used only in the early morning or late evening and must not be left unattended.

Icebreakers poised for rescue attempt

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

A desperate battle between two Canadian Coast Guard icebreakers and the awesome Arctic ice pack off Point Barrow, Alaska, is expected to be fought next week.

The 6,200-ton Halifax-based icebreaker Sir John A. Macdonald will meet the Esquimalt-based icebreaker Camsell in the Beaufort Sea early today and the two will work together to try to smash a return path out of the Arctic waters for the Canadian oceanographic ships Theta and Pandora II.

Scientists from Pat Bay's Institute of Ocean Sciences have been conducting an environmental impact study from the two smaller vessels in the Beaufort Sea. The study started two years ago.

A Canadian Coast Guard official said Thursday in Victoria that the Sir John A. Macdonald and the Camsell should be able to break through the pack-ice in about a week and the three west coast-based ships should have a clear passage home once they are through the ice.

The official said the larger icebreaker had been working in the eastern end of the Arctic this summer and because the Camsell has a damaged bow it was decided to have the Sir John A. Macdonald meet Camsell and work their way out with their charges.

He said the Camsell received an eight-foot long gash in her bow while working her way into the Arctic. The damaged bow has been repaired but the ship cannot be used to full capacity while working in heavy ice because of the damage.

"We decided to bring in the Macdonald to help get the ships out and once they are out of the ice she will return to the Arctic and work her way back to Halifax," he said.

The pack-ice off Point Barrow this year is the worst in more than 50 years. It blocked a $1-billion sea-train of 47 barges and 23 tugs carrying suplies to oil development operations at Prudhoe Bay for almost two months.

Generally ships working their way into the Arctic wait for offshore winds to make an opening in the ice pack, enabling them to scoot through. This year there have been few winds from the right direction to help the ships make their runs past the point.

The Sir John A. Macdonald made a name for herself in 1967 when she smashed her way through Arctic ice to aid the American coast guard icebreaker Northwind which had become trapped.

After that rescue mission the ship put into Esquimalt for a brief stop before returning to Halifax.

The coast guard official said if all goes well the three Victoria ships should be here in about three weeks.

Trident base warning from nuclear arms expert

Victorians told to 'raise hell'

By GRANIA LITWIN
Colonist Reporter

Victoria and Vancouver residents were urged by an international disarmament expert Thursday to "raise hell with the American government" to prevent the construction of the Trident nuclear submarine base at Bangor, Wash.

The proposed base, only 50 miles from Victoria, will be "the greatest nuclear military complex in the world and prime target for anyone," Dr. William Epstein said at a luncheon meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria Thursday.

Epstein, a visiting professor at the University of Victoria this winter, has just completed three months of international scientific meetings in Moscow, Washington, Ottawa, New York and Japan. Former head of the disarmament division of the United Nations in New York, he is also a lawyer specializing in international law.

Epstein said an explosion resulting from a direct hit on the base itself would destroy practically everyone in this part of the northern hemisphere.

While Victoria lies perilously close to the proposed nuclear base, Epstein further explained that its proximity is a worry even if a bomb never falls in the region.

"Victoria and Vancouver will no longer be attractive places to live after the base is built ... there will always be a psychological nuclear cloud hanging at the back of the mind.

"The people of B.C. should think of self-preservation ... but it is also a moral responsibility to see this base is never built here or anywhere."

"Before the technology, reactors and fissionable material spread to every country and are used by maniacs and terrorists we must go to work on the governments," Epstein said.

"Get scientists to recognize their responsibility and stop working on mass destruction weapons and raise hell with the American government ... the Bangor base must stop altogether."

"The United States is ahead of the Russians right now," he said. "We have a nuclear arsenal of strategic nuclear warheads sufficient to knock out every city in the Soviet Union 36 times, while the U.S.S.R. has enough nuclear weapons to do the same to the U.S. a dozen times.

He said that today's small nuclear bombs, called "baby or mini nukes" are the size of those dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Just imagine what the more powerful ones can do, he said.

"In the past 15 years we have had partial arms control treaties and non-proliferation treaties — they amount to only a blueprint for the continuation of the race under agreed conditions."

"Each side (U.S. and Soviet Union) can have 20,000 deliverable warheads under the agreement — this is five times as many as they now possess. Each country can also develop 1,320 missiles with an average of 10 warheads each."

According to the professor," that means "mutual assured destruction, more commonly known as M.A.D."

"As Churchill once said, all it can do is make the rubble bounce," he commented.

"All these horrible weapons have been dreamed up in the fertile minds of scientists; it is an awful kind of expertise. Scientists should rather apply themselves to agricultural problems."

According to Epstein, what is needed is disarmament, not just arms control.

Protection given prisoner at Wilkinson

A 21-year-old B.C. man who claimed Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court that he was beaten at Wilkinson Road jail, Saanich, was taken back to the jail Thursday after an investigation which satisfied his lawyer.

Defence lawyer Dean Wilson said he had spoken to "the assistant director" of the jail and had been assured the staff was aware of the assault on John Paul McLarty of the Peace River community of Chetwynd.

He said he was told the staff was making sure there would be no more assaults and "protectiive measures are being taken."

Wednesday, Wilson quoted McLarty as saying he had been "attacked and severely beaten by two inmates" Monday. He said McLarty told him a hunting knife had been used. McLarty had been moved to the jail hospital, but there, he was "kicked at" and his life was threatened.

However, jail director Hal McGillivray had told the Colonist that McLarty's worst injury was a bleeding nose and the incident apparently arose from gambling. McGillivray said he had no reports of a knife and there had been no trouble after the transfer to hospital.

McLarty was charged Aug. 20 with a bank holdup attempt March 20 in Victoria and freed on bail. On Sept. 3, he was charged with a $4,000 bank holdup Feb. 24 in Victoria and bail was set this time at $2,000, which he could not raise.

He was originally to appear each Wednesday on weekly remands before his first hearing Nov. 4. Thursday, this was changed to Mondays at the suggestion of prosecutor Nicholas Lang.

Lang said he had been advised "a number of persons were involved" in the assault on McLarty but none of them appeared Mondays on weekly remands.

Indications were he meant protective measures could be maintained at the jail by the staff but it might be a different matter in the sheriff services van which takes inmates to court each morning.

Sloppy living 'may crush' health system

Harmful lifestyles could lead to "overwhelming" health care costs in the future, according to Dr. Archie Pickles, Royal Jubilee Hospital administrator.

But Pickles told the weekly meeting of Victoria Rotary Club Thursday that "each of us can help individually by reasonable modifications in potentially harmful lifestyles."

Pickles said statistics showed that a significant portion of illness is "at least in part, self-induced.

"Should the highly skilled but expensive treatment services of which our doctors and hospitals are now capable be made available without question to such individuals?" he asked.

Between the ages of five and 35, he said, the principal causes of death are accidents and suicides.

"Since all these causes of death are substantially due to human factors including carelessness, speeding, impaired driving, failure to use seat belts and other self-imposed risks or environmental pressures, it is obvious that a reduction in mortality calls for changes in these factors."

Among persons from 35 to 70 years, almost one-half of all deaths can be attributed to diseases of the cardiovascular system.

"Though causes of circulatory diseases are many and varied (including genetic inheritance), these deaths are certainly not unconnected with obesity, smoking stress, lack of exercise — a combination of environmental factors and self-imposed risks," he said.

Pickles told the Rotarians that "an overwhelming percentage of the health dollar has gone into curative rather than preventive services."

He estimated that health care costs absorb 7 per cent of the Gross National Product and he warned that this figure could grow substantially.

Pickles predicted any change in direction of health care would be slow.

"Any money spent on environmental change or protection may well interfere with other spending priorities but effort and money spent in these areas may well be essential to contain health care costs and ensure our ability to maintain treatment services which should not be denied the sick," he said.

Distillery haul nets fine

KELOWNA (CP) — Sandra Stoklassa, 30, was fined $200 Thursday after being found guilty in provincial court of possessing liquor unlawfully removed from the Hiram Walker distillery.

The former distillery employee, one of 18 charged after $22,000 worth of liquor was confiscated in RCMP raids May 22, also was charged with possessing stolen property valued under $200. A stay of proceedings was entered on that charge.

Stoklassa was the last of the 18 persons charged to appear in court.

Shinerama target set at $10,000 this year

University students and nursing students from the two major hospitals in Victoria are combining forces in Shinerama '75, a two-day drive to raise money for the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The aim this year is to raise $10,000 Friday and Saturday.

Units of two or three students equipped with shoeshine materials will be out in force on all major corners in downtown Victoria, at all shopping centres, in Sidney and, where manpower permits, at Pat Bay Airport and Swartz Bay ferry terminal to shine shoes for donations to help fight a disease which strikes one out of every 1,000 Canadian children.

Last year, only $6,000 was raised and Shinerama officials blamed it on bad organization.

They feel that the problem has been solved this year and would like to see a return to the 1973 level, when they raised $13,000 on the weekend.

The campaign will start Friday night with the nurses going on a "pub crawl" starting at 7 p.m. City beer parlors will be invaded in a three-hour blitz and patrons will be canvassed for a shine or donations.

On Saturday, UVic students will begin gathering at the Student Union Building at 8 a.m. and should be manning the streets by about 9.

The campaign will end at 4 p.m. and shiners will attend a dance that evening at the university's Commons Block starting at 9.

HORSE HAPPENINGS

Six junior riders take double wins

By MARILYN McCALL

The Cowichan Exhibition in Duncan featured a three-day CHSA horse show over the weekend. Mrs. Brewster from Calgary judged the three-day event.

Six junior riders managed to win two classes each on junior English day. Anne Stone, riding Albert, was first in junior A equitation and junior show hack, Nancy McMinn and Hank Flit Bar won junior working hunter under saddle and junior A equitation hunt seat over jumps. Riding Spearstone Cathy Stone was first in junior B equitation hunt seat over jumps and junior working hunter (11-14). Both junior working hunter (14-18) and junior jumper were won by Jamie Richardson on Grey cloud. Marilyn Little, on Shanandoah Cheyenne, was first in local saddle horse or pony (English and working pony under saddle. Junior C equitation hunt seat over jumps and pony working hunter were won by Vicky Stubbs on Princess.

Carolyn Horton, riding Samuel, won junior B equitation. Riding Copper, Robbie Thornton won junior C equitation. Pony jumper was won by Erin Collins on Sir James.

Gina Ross won the Buckerfield Trophy for her performance on open English day. Riding Dream Whip, she won open conformation hunter, open working hunter, open jumping, and fault and out jumping. Anne Stone and Albert won road hack (15.2 and over), show hack (15.2 and over), and working hunter under saddle. Gerald McDonald rode Albadi Tarfawi to first in show hack (14.2 to 15.2) and was champion saddle horse. Riding Brother Rastus, Jill Yonge won green conformation hunter and intermediate jumper.

Road hack (14.2 to 15.2) was won by Joan Andrews on Silent Smith. Doris Ganton drove Special Magic to first in hackney driving class. Kelvin Heather, ridden by Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, won the English pleasure class, and also took home the T. Eaton Challenge Trophy.

All information on horse groups for this column can be sent to Horse Happenings, Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Association, Box 186, Victoria, B.C.

Pleasure driving, non-hackney, was won by G. Maycock, driving Laurie Anne. Lindsay Joyce, riding High Voltage, won open working hunter, and, riding Belor, won preliminary jumper.

Halter classes were held on western day. The best horse foaled in Cowichan district was Centabi, owned by Lynn and shown by Blake Bolton, who was also first in Arabian foals. Brood mare suitable to produce a hunter type horse was Energy, owned by Mrs. M. King and shown by Pam Lenko. Pacific Sand, owned by Pam Lenko, was first in thoroughbred model class.

El Korbaha, owned by Black Tent Arabians and shown by Jim Lorenzen, was top Arabian stallion as well as champion Arabian stallion. Lynn Bolton's filly Sirmara, was first in Arabian colts and fillies as well as champion Arabian mare, and her mare Sirri was first in Arabian mares. Nafali Ghabra, owned by Bob Hayward Training Stables, and shown by Bob Hayward, was top Arabian gelding. First in Arabian yearlings was Lizaan, owned by Dale O'Connell.

Western performance classes were held after the halter classes. Roddy Rimmer, riding Dun's Mischief, won equitation stock saddle seat junior B, and Heather Rimmer, riding Dun's Mischief, won open western riding horse. Ladies western pleasure, open western pleasure, and western pleasure stake were won by Mia Custus, ridden by Marilyn McCall.

Cedar Valley Riding Club sponsored an English western Show in Nanaimo, which was judged by Doreen Todd.

Peron taking 40 days off

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Isabel Peron has advised her cabinet the armed forces commanders and the man next in line to the presidential succession that she plans to take a leave of absence for 40 days, government sources said Wednesday. There was no official confirmation.

Hatchet job on bandit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man pulled out a knife and demanded money from King Mah, 50, at his East-End Vancouver store. Mah reached under the counter and came up with not money but a hatchet instead. He then chased the would-be robber two blocks, stopped him and stood guard over him with the sharp-edged hatchet until police arrived.

Human bones in oil tank

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A workman investigating a malfunctioning valve in a large oil storage tank found it blocked by a human skull Tuesday. Other human bones were found at the bottom of the tank when it was drained. It was not immediately determined whether they were the bones of a man or a woman, or when the person died.

Fetuses deprived of needed oxygen

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pregnant women who smoke may be depriving fetuses of oxygen critical to proper growth and development, say researchers at Johns Hopkins University.

Scientists have known that women who smoke cigarettes tend to give birth to undersized and sometimes dangerously delicate babies, but the cause has remained a mystery.

Classically, doctors have thought that oxygen from the mother's bloodstream travelled through the placenta and into the fetus by a simple process of diffusion.

The researchers report, however, that the placenta contains molecules, similar to blood hemoglobin, that speed the flow of oxygen from mother to fetus in bucket-brigade fashion from molecule to molecule.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the gal whose sisters, aunts and cousins descended on her mother's house like a pack of vultures and picked the place clean hit very close to home. The writer signed herself "Can't Stand Grabbers." Well — I hope your advice "make a will" was heeded by all those nice people out there who just assume their belongings will go to the people they want to have them.

When my husband's darling mother died, his sister arrived first. She was grief-stricken. For about 15 minutes. Then she pulled herself together and went through the house like a streak of lightning. When I walked into the bedroom to use the phone I saw drawers open and boxes strewn everywhere. The place looked as if it had been burglarized. I couldn't believe it.

When "sis" left she had all the jewelry, silver and every piece of art worth owning. She also had her name taped on the best pieces of furniture. "I'll send you some of Mother's nice things," Sis promised as she left.

My husband adored his mother and so did our children. They don't have one thing worth keeping as a memento. Of course the poor darling never wrote a will — and she'd turn over in her grave if she knew what has happened. — Heartsick.

Dear Heartsick: Your letter says it far better than I could — but I'll make another attempt. Make a will! It's the only way to be sure your money and personal belongings will go to those who want to have them. Otherwise the grabbers will move in fast.

Also, the attorney in charge of the estate should make certain nothing is removed from the house of the deceased until the will has been read.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't be alone in my misery. Please help us all.

My mother-in-law, for the third time this year, is coming to visit for two weeks. I could put up with her if she'd just be a guest. But the minute she arrives she begins to clean the house, rearrange the furniture and make suggestions on how to improve the looks of the place. ("Your kitchen needs new curtains. The bathrooms could use a coat of paint," etc.) She starts every sentence with, "Why don't you?"

I find myself getting nervous before each visit. By the time she leaves, I'm on tranquilizers and my husband and I aren't speaking. He says, "She's just trying to help." Get the picture? — Sign Me Berserk.

Dear B.: One thing is certain — you will never change your mother-in-law, but you can change a few other things.

First: the frequency of her visits. Ask your doctor to inform your husband that his mother's visits are too taxing and should be cut to twice a year.

Trekkers wintering west of Winnipeg

GLADSTONE, Man. (CP) — The five remaining members of the Great Canadian Wagon Train have reached the end of the trail for the winter, but hope to resume their trek to Alberta's Peace River country early next spring.

The group, greatly reduced in number but toughened by five months of plodding across Ontario and Manitoba, finally decided to call it quits for the year in this community 80 miles west of Winnipeg.

Rainy weather late last month slowed their pace and made completion of the last 1,200 miles of the journey impossible this year.

"We figured we'd have to do 27 miles a day, seven days a week if we were going to reach the end by winter," explained Jim Collins of Burlington, Ont. "We wouldn't have been able to stop a day on the way."

Collins and his wife Karen, who were married last month as the wagon train passed through Ignace, Ont., plan to winter in Gladstone if work is available.

They are settled in a weather-beaten farmhouse near the community. Their three companions, Ann Lance, Murray Tucker and John Houghton, returned to Toronto for the winter this week.

Despite the setbacks they have experienced to date, all five remain enthusiastic about their original plans for homesteading in Alberta.

The original group left Kleinburg, Ont., April 1, with 60 latter-day pioneers, 12 wagons and a complement of horses. From the beginning they were beset with problems — a snowstorm that stranded them for five days just hours after their departure, poor leadership, money missing from a donation box, a split in the group.

Then there was the assortment of "characters" they encountered en route, including an alcoholic actor and a highway evangelist determined to save the souls of everyone he met.

These were some of the reminiscences from five months of hard and often dreary travelling.

But there was also the camaraderie that developed among the "survivors" and the dozens of lighter anecdotes.

"What do you need?" Karen Collins asks rhetorically to a question about the trip. "A sense of humor. You've got to be able to sing Christmas carols in July."

Safe and happy

Concentrated search by more than 300 people for Crista Frans, 3, left, and Micah MvLellan, 4, ended happily Wednesday night when they were found safe inside locked camper at Queen's Park, New Westminster, only 100 feet from where they were last seen.

Six Polish trawlers off Island west coast

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six big Polish deepsea trawlers have been operating off the lower west coast of Vancouver Island during the past month, a federal fisheries service spokesman said Thursday.

Rod Hourston, regional fisheries director, said it is the first time Polish vessels have fished the waters in a group that size.

Hourston said the trawlers were boarded by fisheries officers and it was determined they were taking hake, a bottom fish usually caught off the U.S. west coast.

Canadian port facilities have been refused to the Polish vessels although the Russians were given port and transfer facilities in the Queen Charlotte Islands after agreeing to keep clear of the congested Big Bank area off Vancouver Island.

No Russian fishing vessels were reported off the B.C. coast during an Aug. 21-to-Sept. 9 survey period.

Presence of the Polish trawlers first became generally known Wednesday when the body of a cook was brought ashore at Victoria from the 2,650-ton stern ramp trawler Sirius.

Scaffolding, model tug stolen

Police on the look up

If there was any connection between two recent thefts over on the west side of Victoria's Inner Harbor, a tiny tug may show up at a high elevation.

Victoria police disclosed Thursday that someone stole more than $2,000 worth of scaffolding which owner Lewis Knott, 1765 Glastonbury, had stored on a construction site at Tyee and Raynor, near Selkirk Water. A large, heavy steel tank and wood stacked above the scaffolding had been carefully moved to allow the theft.

Police also said someone stole a $1,000 model tugboat from a glass display case in the Princess Mary Restaurant. The model was three feet long and 13 inches high.

The scaffolding was stolen some time Monday, the model tugboat between 5 and 10 p.m. Tuesday. Police have nothing to indicate any link between the two nearby thefts but are on the lookout, and up, nonetheless.

Mt. Baker steam vent reached by scientists

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Scientists have managed for the first time to get within a few feet of Mt. Baker's largest steam vent after making their way through ice caves to the centre of the steaming Sherman Crater.

Last week, a team of eight climbers and scientists hiked through the ice passages to the acid lake in the centre of the crater. The crater lake, about the size of a football field, is near the summit of the 10,778-foot peak.

In addition to reaching the main steam vent, the team also discovered a sizable creek running out of the east breach of the crater and under Boulder Glacier, from which the acidic water eventually runs into Boulder Creek and then into Baker Lake at the foot of the mountain.

Scientists and the U.S. Forest Service have indicated there is a possibility of a massive mudslide on the east side of the mountain because of steam activity undermining rock material near Sherman Crater.

Dr. Steve Malone, University of Washington seismologist, said Wednesday that the east breach of the crater would be used for a data collection platform — a satellite recording system to sample temperatures in the area and transmit them to U.S. Geological Survey receiving stations in California.

"A recording system here will reflect more accurately the temperatures throughout the whole crater," Malone said.

Malone said the temperature monitoring equipment would be installed within the next few weeks.

Suspended steelworkers 'did not have a trial'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Suspension of six members by the United Steelworkers of America Local 3302 was handed out in a manner completely against the steelworkers' constitution, the secretary-treasurer of an independent union said Thursday.

Jess Succamore, national secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers said six members of Local 3302 working at Western Canada Steel "didn't even get a trial."

Neil MacKinnon, steelworkers' local 3302 president, said the decision to suspend the six workers was made at a membership meeting attended by 27 workers, which he described as a normal turnout.

He said the meeting voted to suspend their union rights and privileges for as long as they remain members of the association local which they were organizing.

Among those suspended are association Local 6 president Glen McInnes, vice-president Ron Scramstad and recording secretary Harold David.

The men are in no danger of losing their jobs in the closed-shop plant because of a recent amendment to the provincial Labor Code which prohibits any worker being dismissed on account of joining another union.

MacKinnon said the six were suspended because they actually formed a local of another union and elected officers.

"They've gone against the steelworkers local and we feel we don't need them in our local anywhere," said MacKinnon. "If they dissolve the CAIMAW local and drop everything else, then everything will be straightened out and there'll be no problem."

The association has an application before the B.C. Labor relations board to represent plant workers at Western Canada Steel, claiming to have signed up a majority of the steelworkers' bargaining unit. The steelworkers defeated the association 135-to-116 in a certification vote last July that was the product of another raiding bid by the independent Canadian union.

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A bus driver who asked a friend to steer the vehicle while it was in motion was blamed today for a collision with a tank truck which killed three persons and injured 11 others.

Union walkout leaves B.C. Railway unfazed

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Members of the United Transportation Union Thursday staged their fourth 12-hour walkout in less than a month against the B.C. Railway, but company officials said the stoppage had little effect on freight services.

Yard crews walked out at Lillooet to attend a "union meeting" called to back demands for restructured overtime pay.

A company spokesman said: "Through a combination of factors, chiefly disruptions in the forest industry, we are running only about 40 per cent of normal operations for this time of the year. This reduced the impact of the walkout."

The railroad has been forced to lay off 600 of its 3,000 employees because of the province's forest dispute and has banned the carrying of livestock, perishable goods, and explosives because of strike notices by trainmen and engineers' unions.

Tyee, coho biting around Alberni Inlet waters

If you want to get a tyee this year your best bet now is to try Alberni Inlet.

Fishermen are still getting some big ones at Nahmint and Franklin River. Along the Rock Bluffs has been a hot spot.

Best of all it looks as though there will be some good tyee fishing in Alberni Inlet for some weeks to come. They are still being caught off the Effingham Islets at the entrance to Barkley Sound.

If you don't catch a tyee in Alberni Inlet, chances are you can get a coho. They are now up the inlet as far as Cous Creek.

Refined art of doubletalk

FORT WORTH, Tex. — For the past 10 months half of Martha Bell's $80 Rhodesian art purchase has sat in a New Jersey bulk mail centre in the custody of government officials with a ready grasp of bureaucratic doubletalk.

The government allowed half of Mrs. Bell's art purchases to clear postal examination and reach her Texas home but the rest was confiscated.

Mrs. Bell reminded the official all the art work was bought in Rhodesia — not just the confiscated half — and the government replied that the United States is not allowing Americans to buy anything in Rhodesia; the U.S. would mail the art back to Rhodesia if Mrs. Bell would supply the name of the shop where it was purchased; the U.S. woud not mail the art work to any of Mrs. Bell's Rhodesian acquaintances because they might try to bring it into the county as personal belongings; Mrs. Bell should pay a storage fee while the art sits at the bulk mail centre; the art will be auctioned if the storage fee isn't paid; the auction will be held in the U.S. and anyone wanting to buy it can purchase at auction the forbidden merchandise.

The frustrated Mrs. Bell doesn't know if she qualifies to repurchase her art work but hopes to find out.

'TEACHERS HINDERED'

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said Friday more in-service training must be given to B.C. teachers.

Mrs. Dailly, who returned Friday from a United Nations conference on teacher education in Geneva, said teachers must be equipped with updated knowledge and techniques "if we are to develop a quality education system."

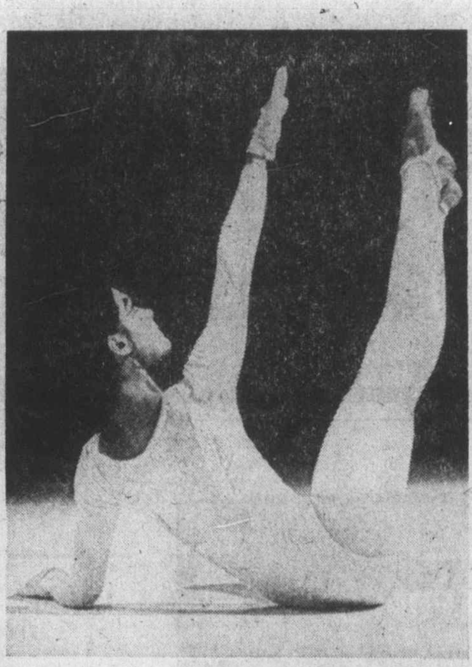
THE LIVING WORLD
AN EVENING COURSE IN BIOLOGY
An understanding of Biology has become central to intelligent living in the twentieth century.
This course is designed for adults who wish to understand important biological concepts but who have little or no previous scientific background. The diversity and unity of living things will be illustrated through lectures, discussions and films on a variety of topics such as ecology, evolution and the world's food supply. Sessions will include demonstrations of pertinent materials and special lectures by guest experts. No laboratory work is required. A reading list will be provided.
Offered through the Division of Continuing Education, University of Victoria by the Department of Biology.
Wednesdays, beginning September 24, 7:30-9:30 p.m.
Fee $30 per Term
To Register: Call 477-6911, Local 802, 803, 804, 8:30 a.m.-9:00 p.m., Monday-Friday.



VICTORIA Langton, member of Paula Ross dance company, will perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 19 and 20.

Original dances to be presented

A new West Coast dance company, the Paula Ross Dancers, will perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 19 and 20 in Open Space, 510 Fort.

Choreographed by Paula Ross, former principal soloist of the Pacific Dance Theatre, the dances are all original and draw techniques from ballet, jazz and folk dancing.

The group has appeared throughout the western provinces with performances in Vancouver, Victoria, Calgary and the Northwest Territories.

Guitarist-vocalist Luke Gibson will perform his own music at 8 p.m. Friday in Open Space. Appearing with him will be Toronto guitarist David Hayes.

Gibson has performed in Toronto, New York and Los Angeles and has produced two records.

He recently performed at the Northern Lights Festival in Sudbury, Ont., and the Winnipeg Folk Festival.

At Open Space Gallery, 506 Fort, starting Monday there will be an exhibition of the works of local sculptor and painter Rick Thomas.

The 31-year-old artist specializes in drawings of Victorian buildings and miniature illustrations of their facades.

The show opens at 8 p.m. Monday and continues through Wednesday.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Blue Bird has completed its flight.

Twentieth Century-Fox has received news that the trouble-plagued co-production of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. has completed filming in Leningrad after seven months of production.

Director George Cukorcu finished the final scene in a set described as the entrance to the Garden of Dreams.

The film, based on Maurice Maeterlinck's fantasy with an international cast including Elizabeth Taylor, Ava Gardner, Jane Fonda and Cicely Tyson, is expected to be released next Easter.

PROVINCIAL COURT

Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, whose nine-year term of office ends this weekend, had hoped to get through the week in Victoria Provincial Court without sending the court's No. 1 regular to jail. But it wasn't to be.

The regular is Frank Peter Ellis, 56, no fixed address, who has spent most of the past decade serving short terms for causing disturbances, getting out, finding trouble right away — usually for drinking, going back to jail, getting out and so on ad infinitum.

Ellis appeared Tuesday morning on a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk Monday afternoon at the bus deport on Douglas — his usual place of arrest. He pleaded guilty — he always does.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang read a record for Ellis of 12 jail terms ranging from five days to six months in the last year alone. St. Jorre said he realized Ellis was "almost institutionalized" and wanted to go to jail, where guards and inmates were his only friends.

But the judge wanted to see if Ellis could make it and didn't want to jail him in the last week before he and other part-time judges lose their positions through newly-proclaimed B.C. legislation. He gave Ellis a nominal one-day term, which meant Ellis could leave.

That was late Tuesday morning. that night, Ellis spent the night in jail after showing up drunk at the police station, but was not charged. He left Wednesday morning and was arrested that afternoon on the Causeway, swearing at tourists.

Thursday, he pleaded guilty. St. Jorre sentenced him to 14 days, saying: "I was hoping I wouldn't see you any more until I went out of office but this is just too much."

A 30-year-old Victoria man who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of wilful damage was sentenced to 31 days in jail for what St. Jorre called "senseless and meaningless destruction ... needless destruction."

Prosecutor Lang said George Frank Nocifore, 737 Vancouver, broke a phone receiver against the side of a phone booth in the 2500 block Government Monday evening. Nocifore said he was angry because the phone didn't work.

Of Nocifore, who said he was on welfare, the judge said: "Here's a man who's unemployed. He's got nothing and he goes and destroys property."

Nocifore also was ordered to pay B.C. Tel phone Co. 31.38 for the damage.

James David Duncan, 24, a resident of the Lower Mainland community of Delta, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of possession of a small amount of marijuana July 26 but was not prepared to admit a similar conviction Aug. 6, 1974, in Toronto.

Prosecutor Malcolm McMicken said his records showed Duncan received an absolute discharge in Toronto but Legal Aid duty counsel William McCallum said Duncan told him the charge was withdrawn.

St. Jorre settled the matter after learning Duncan, a U.S. citizen, had spent three days in jail awaiting hearing and faced early deportation. He fined Duncan $100, where the normal fine for a narcotics-possession first offender is $75.

In the court section of Judge Harold Alder, Bradley John Bates, 17, of 924 Tattersall, was found guilty following trial on a Victoria charge of possession of a weapon for a purpose dangerous to the public peace.

Testimony showed Bates had a knife in his possession June 21 after refusing a request to leave MacDonald's, 980 Pandora. Alder fined Bates $200 and put him on probation for six months.

In the court section of Judge Douglas Campbell, Ontario visitor Donald Frederick Gauthier, 18, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of impaired driving July 26. He was sentenced to seven days in jail, fined $150, ordered to take an "impaired driver" course and banned from driving for 45 days.

In the court section of Judge F. S. Green, a fine of $350 and a six-month term of probation were set for William Bruce Hilborn, 19, of 2388 Alpine. He pleaded guilty Aug. 25 to a Victoria charge of false pretences involving less than $200 laid after a bad cheque was written July 18 to obtain car parts worth a total of $199.14.

Bomb blamed on Basques

MADRID (UPI) — Suspected Basque separatists bombed a railway tunnel and tried to blow up the main Madrid-to-France highway in the strife-torn Basque region of northern Spain, the national news agency CIFRA said Wednesday.

The more you know about whisky, The better for OFC 8-Year Old.
In between 2 and 12 years, at one point in aging, like everything else in life, Canadian whisky reaches "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full bodied.
In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime."
That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.
You can drink younger whisky or older whisky but you can't drink finer whisky than OFC 8-Year Old.

Fred Putzer of Delta will try for a third consecutive victory Sunday in the seventh annual Gorge Canoe races.

Putzer, twice winner of the senior men's racing canoe competition, will be back to defend his title in the two-day event, sponsored by Victoria Canoe Club.

Races will be run Saturday and Sunday, with the mixed race, junior men's and women's, and Centennial senior sprint scheduled Saturday. The senior women's, senior men's standard canoe, and senior men's racing canoe events, are slated for Sunday. Racing both days starts at 1 p.m.

Senior events Sunday will cover a 10-mile course, originating at Craigflower Park near Gorge and Admirals Roads, and winding up in Esquimalt harbor.

Putzer set the record of 1 hour and 38 minutes two years ago in his racing canoe, but a low tide hampered times last year.

Competitors can register for the events by appearing an hour or so before race time.

Regular admission at the International Entrance covers them all: Sparkling entertainment . . . Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to The Stars" . . . Romantic after-dark illumination . . . Six gardens — fabulous Sunken Garden, English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens . . . plus the Begonia Bower, Show Greenhouse, fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Restaurant and Coffee Bar service available.

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: COMBINE THEM ALL INTO ONE GRAND, THRIFTY OUTING—the Gardens by daylight . . . entertainment . . . romantic night lighting and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers them all. For added pleasure dine in the Floral Restaurant.

EVERY EVENING — BUTCHART GARDENS' ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING, FEATURING THE FABULOUS SUNKEN GARDEN AND THE SPECTACULAR ROSS FOUNTAINS IN THEIR MAJESTIC "BALLET TO THE STARS." As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland softly scented by the flowers. Unusual! Indescribable! This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT — Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar Service.

BUTCHART GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! — Skillful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written-about, talked-about, admired attractions.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden notes

All last winter and well on into the early months of spring I kept getting letters from home gardeners complaining that their onions had gone bad in storage.

Many of these readers had had wonderful luck in growing this pungent vegetable and had lifted a fine-looking crop of firm, big, clean-skinned bulbs, but they didn't keep at all well. Some turned soft and rotted; some covered themselves with a blue mould, and the rest grew an assortment of greenish or greyish whiskers.

In almost all the cases reported to me, the onions had rotted in storage because they hadn't been finished off properly before harvesting and storing.

It isn't too hard to grow good onions, given a really rich soil and lots of sunshine, although the onion maggot has always been a bit of a problem until the insecticide Diazinon came along. Actually, the only really tricky part of onion culture is finishing them off properly — that is, building good storage qualities into them.

The important thing to remember is that onions will not keep well in storage if they are taken up while they are still growing. An onion will "stay put" in winter storage only if it has finished growing and has gone dormant — fast asleep — when you harvest it. If it is still wide awake and pushing, all sorts of unpleasant things can happen and usually do.

If our onions would only behave the way the garden books say they should, finishing them off should be a cinch. The plants are supposed to become drowsy in late summer or early fall, with the tips of the leaves turning straw-color and the tops becoming limp and falling down of their own accord.

Only too often, though, the stupid things just keep on growing, standing green and upright, and must be given a strong hint that the honeymoon is over. This is especially likely to happen in a cool, damp season.

The traditional method of inducing dormancy in onions is to bend down the tops, preferably toward the north. Not that there is any particular magic in this direction — the idea is simply to keep the bent-down tops from shading the bulbs, which need all the sun they can get to ripen their tissues.

It is a good idea, too, to scratch away some soil from around the bulbs so they are sitting right up on the surface, fully exposed to the sun and with only their roots in the ground.

Mind you, this top-bending stunt doesn't always work. If the tops are very brittle and turgid with sap, they may break or crack at the bend, which is just about the same as taking them up too soon — they won't keep in storage. Try it on a single onion first to see if the top growth is limp enough to bend without cracking. If the tops are still too brittle, quit watering.

A few days of drought should induce sufficient limpness to permit bending. If rain defeats your strategy, try severing some of the deeper roots with a sharp-edged spade or an edging iron.

How can you tell when it is safe to take up your onions? By the appearance of the tops. They should lose their green coloring from the top down, and when most of the green has gone, even though the tops have not completely turned, you can get on with the job.

After lifting, the bulbs should be given a good baking in the sun. Keep them bone dry — a sunporch or a coldframe is good — or spread them out on a hard path or driveway, never on a lawn that is wet with dew every morning. One of my neighbours — a keen gardener — hangs her onions out on her clothesline for this ripening period!

The test for ripeness is when the roots and tops crumble away when rubbed. At this point the bulbs cn be cleaned up and stored in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place.

Jack Smith

In writing the other day of once-common words that have passed from our everyday conversation, I knew there were many more than the few suggested by a reader, Roslyn Gaines, and the others I threw in.

Hers were icebox, slacks, undertaker, galoshes, grocery store, rumpus room, pocketbook, gear shift and skyscraper. I added crooner, marcel, running board and slow ball.

"Did you ever hear of snuggies?" asks Edith Zittler. "Any female who waited for streetcars and buses in subzero weather some years back will know. They were short woolen pants worn under the girdle or over the girdle or . . . next to the skin."

Streetcars? Girdle?

"And when was the last time," asks Lou Rosen of San Diego, "you heard someone mention their B.V.D.s? I can't even remember what the letters stood for."

I can't either, but I wore them, and I recall that just the mention of B.V.D.s in polite company was good for a snicker.

"As for galoshes," writes Grace Wood, of San Gabriel, Calif., who came here from the east in 1922, "I have worn those galoshes with metal fasteners, which we left open to flap as we walked (1921). I have heard that this is how the word flapper originated."

Flapper?

Mrs. Wood also recalls spats, buttonhooks, pen wipers and snap-top pocketbooks, which were carried by men instead of women.

V. R. Chapman of Laguna Hills, Calif., out of Nebraska, has jettisoned his thermal underwear, fur cap, furlined gloves and woolen mufflers, but he still has his galoshes. "I wear them when I wash the car with the hose. That way my feet come out dry — a great reward."

Tom Alexander comes up with lead pencil, fountain pen and soda fountain, among others, and crackerjack, meaning real good.

I don't know. The ballpoint pen, though nearly universal now, hasn't entirely displaced the lead pencil and the fountain pen. As for the soda fountain, I think it still exists in Hollywood; or where would tomorrow's Lana Turners be discovered.

Claire Estelle still says ice box and Victrola, but deplores the loss of two words which have not died, but been kidnapped and sold into prostitution.

"Let us consider swing," she mourns. "As its usage moved outward to include (besides its original concept of back and forth motion) a style of music and dance, I was able to absorb this, since I danced swing dances to swing music. I cut a rug, so to speak. As the root word evolved into swinger, I was able to follow and use the word properly to describe a devil-may-care bon vivant, an insouciant life of the party. But now I must be very, very careful that I do not use the word as defined above, because the subsequent mutation shifted the meaning into an uncomfortably different realm . . .

"But I think the word I miss the most in its old form," she adds, "is gay. The dictionary speaks of merriment and excitement. I would add to that ebullience, and light-hearted spontaneity. What a pity that another word wasn't the one chosen . . . for people whose personal fulfillment differs from the conventional."

I don't mind so much the evolution of swing and swinger, as I never could cut a rug! But without resenting those who have appropriated it, I do miss gay. As rich as our language is, it has no really good substitute for gay.

A reader who doesn't want her name mentioned (she blushes easily) points out the quiet, almost unnoticed disappearance of a word that not long ago was a part of every mixed-company conversation — risque. Not only has the word itself disappeared, but also the kind of story or remark it defined.

"Sadly," our blushing reader says, "no such thing exists anymore. So sorry. Unforbidden things are really not as much fun (as Huxley enlarged upon)."

Quite. And gone with risque is its companion, the double entendre. Now that everything is permitted to hang out, as we say, and unrestrained speech is regarded as liberating and healthful, there is no point in trying to turn out one of those clever conversational coins that are white on one side and blue on the other.

Come to think of it, is there such a word as blush anymore? I will leave the last word to an old acquaintance of mine, Easy Sloman, who happens to have the best name I have ever heard in my life.

Sydney Harris

When I returned from a trip to Detroit recently, one of my sons asked me about the city, and I told him that in order to get to Canada from Detroit, I had to travel south — which most adults know.

He didn't believe it, until I showed him the map. And the reason he didn't believe it, of course, is that most people "take the map for the territory," as the semanticists put it.

In his mind, it was fixed that "Canada is north of the United States," so how could anyone travel south from an American city to get to Canada? Once such a concept is fixed in anyone's mind, even the map becomes distorted, and we visualibe what we want to see, not what is there.

As another example, most people are surprised to learn that the city of Reno, Nev., is 100 miles farther west than Los Angeles. In the map of their minds, Los Angeles is on the Pacific Coast, and Reno is "inland," so it must be farther east.

A geographical oddity not so commonly known is that Jacksonville, Fla., is farther west than Cleveland. And, also, that the southernmost tip of Illinois is farther south than the city of Richmond, Va. And, in Panama, the sun rises in the Pacific and Sets in the Atlantic.

These facts startle us not because we are poor geographers, but because of the "fix" in our minds. Florida is "south," so how can a Florida city be "more west" than one in Ohio? Illinois is "Midwest," so how can an Illinois community be "more south" than the Southern city of Richmond? And we are utterly baffled that the Pacific and Atlantic are reversed in Panama.

Even stranger than these is the fact that New York City lies west — not east, dear typesetter — of the Pacific. Take a ruler to a map of the Western Hemisphere, and you will learn that New York City is west of that part of the Pacific which touches Arica in Chile. We are simply not used to thinking in such terms, for New York is an "eastern" city.

All this is trivia, of course, insofar as geography is concerned. What is important is what these misconceptions show about our ways of thinking on more crucial subjects. Once a "map" has been established in our minds, it is nearly impossible to dislodge it; once we get a "fix" on a certain place, a certain group of people, a certain nation, we regard them as we think they are, not as they really are.

Most of our conflicts arise, not from disagreements about reality, but from distortions of reality. We do not even see the same object clearly enough to agree on what we are disagreeing about. This is why our conflicts are so tragic — and, usually, so insoluble.

James Bacon's Hollywood

At a recent party, a music writer got a little drunk and started berating a well-known sex symbol. She gave it right back to him, which only angered the writer more.

Finally he said that he would ask his "pal" Frank Sinatra to see that the actress got her kneecaps busted. Frank doesn't even know the guy.

The actress finally won the game. She kicked the writer where it hurts. That ended it all.

Marty and Frenchie Allen like to go to quiet places for a vacation. They both made their first trip to Ireland and spent much of their vacation near Belfast. Frenchie has a sister living there.

Marty closed the Queen Mary Suite in London but on a real high note. Jeffrey Kruger, president of Ember, which books acts in the ill-fated night club venture, said:

"Marty was a bloody, hysterical smash and deserved all the standing ovations he got. We want him back (with Frenchie, of course)."

Marty said things were quiet in Northern Ireland while they were there but they saw a lot of fights in pubs in the South.

Carole Lawrence, who has spent her summer on the road as Funny Girl, is losing her Brooklyn accent and slipping into the Queen's English for her role as Guenevere in Camelot, which just opened at the Pavilion.

"I started work on the British accent while still doing Funny Girl," says Carol. "It was frightening to think I might mix up the two."

Did you ever know that the original title for Camelot was Kiss Me, Jenny?

Rediscovered that the other day when I ran across an old column on Richard Burton when he was making Ice Palace.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ARNOLD — IN LOVING MEMORY of a dear husband and father, Lawrence who passed away September 12, 1973.

A cluster of precious memories,
Sprinkled with love and tears,
Wishing God had spared you,
If only a few more years,
You left a beautiful memory, and sorrow to great to behold
And to us who loved you so dearly,
Your memory will never grow old.

—Dearly loved and remembered by his wife Mariette, children Ethel-Maria and Roger and family.

WARD — In loving memory of our Mother Ada E .Ward who passed away September 12, 1973.

There's a face that is haunting as ever
There's a voice that we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember foever,
Though we try to forget every tear.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of affection,
And heartache still for you.

—Kay, Albert and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of our dear son Christie Hugh Smith, who passed away September 12, 1971.
—Always remembered and sadly missed Mom.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

abouttv

bruce lowther

At last! Proof that Canadians are more mature than Americans!

The U.S. has this year ordered the three TV networks to show only "family" programming before 9 p.m. each night, apparently to reduce violence when children are watching. Canada has not followed.

Take Channel 6, which will show Cannon, Rockford Files and Hawaii 5-0 in the supper-9 p.m. period. Or Channel 8, which has Hawaii 5-0 and Streets of San Francisco in that period. And Ironside and The FBI are on in the afternoon.

I think the U.S. rule is stupid, because many children watch after 9 p.m. I admire the Canadian stations for showing they trust parents to turn their dials. Or is it merely green?

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — The last of the comic-strip questions was a triple toughie: Uncle Elby owned the dog Napoleon, the daughter of Dick and Tess Trueheart Tracy was Bonny Braids and Little Orphan Annie started (arf! arf!) in 1924.

Today's question — Speaking of Napoleon, the Little Corporal won one battle with unexpected but fortunate outside help and lost a second battle because of expected but unfortunate opposition. Can you name both battles and tell what happened? Answers Saturday.

Friday highlights

NEWCOMERS: Jack Webb and Jackie Cooper join for Mobile One, 8 p.m. on Channel 4; Glenn Ford's soapy Family Holvak is at 10 p.m. on Channel 6 and the Robert Wagner suspense comedy Switch is at 10 p.m. on 8. Celebrity Dominoes (ture) starts at 7:30 on 8.

NEW SEASONS: MASH returns at 8 p.m. on Channels 2, 6 and 7 with an hour introducing new boss Harry Morgan and Wayne Rogers' replacement, Mike Farrell. Hawaii 5-0 returns with two hours at 9 p.m. on Channel 7. Others, in order, are Bob Newhart, Rockford Files, Sanford and Son, New Candid Camera, Columbo, Cher, Chico and the Man, Mary Tyler Moore and Police Woman. Check the schedules for times and channels, especially since some are on twice.

9:15 p.m. — KCTS pledge-time is mainly a championship skating rerun —9.

10:30 — More Give 'em Hell, Harry bits from the most interviewed man on TV these days, James Whitmore—9.

● 12:00 — ABC's late-nighter is a 21-anniversary party for American International, the studio which brought you Beach Party. Guests include Annette Funicello, Racquel Welch and I forget the rest—4.

Friday movies

12:45 noon — Live a Little, Love a Little (1969 Elvis). Be like everyone else today: save your eyes for James Bond—8.

1:00 p.m.— Black Sleep (hokey but amusing 1956 nasties), Basel Rathbone, Lon Chaney and lovely Akim Tamiroff. Well, maybe not lovely, but he's more than just another pretty face—11.

3:30 — Take Her, She's Mine (missable 1963 romanticomedy), James Stewart, Sandra Dee. Did you know Sandra was born Alexandra Zuck?—5.

● 9:00 — Diamonds Are Forever (1971 James Bond), Sean Connery. First time on TV , which is the only reason for the black dot; I mean, you'd have blamed me if you did't know it was on—4.

9:00 — Women of the Prehistoric Planet (1966 no-no). I don't know how they lived back then, but they all looked like Phyllis Diller—11.

9:00 — Alvarez Kelly (1966 war actioner, a bit above par), William Holden, Richard Widmark. I guess the best thing about this one is John Wayne's not in it—12.

11:20 — Inside Daisy Clover (terrible 1966 inside-showbiz stinker), Natalie Wood, Robert Redford. Turn all four leaves—12.

12:00 — My Geisha (poorish 1962 Shirley MacLaine). Geishas are supposed to be neat persons but they sound like a sneeze to me—2.

12:00 — Ritual of Evil (only fair 1969 chiller), Louis Jourdan, Anne Baxter. I tried a ritual of evil once: work —6.

12:00 — Comedy of Terrors (1963 funsies), Karloff, Lorre, Price and Rathbone. Contains a chuckle or two and beats the competition—8.

12:30 a.m. — Island of Terror (1969 Peter Cushingore). The one with the killer turtles and, in keeping with Jaws, should be called Shells—7.

1:50 — The Slime People (1963 garbage). No. Matilda, it has nothing to do with the media—8.

2:05 — Countess from Hong Kong (1967 Chaplin failure), Loren, Brando. Only good where Chaplin meets Margaret Rutherford—6.

2:15 — Berserk (1968 Joan Crawford ham). Maybe prehistoric women looked like Joan: all shoulders, jaws, teeth and guts—7.

Friday radio

7:00 p.m. — Radio International has a BBC version of Shakespeare's Timon of Athens. Timon's last name was Myhands—CBU-FM (105.7).

10:00 — A Cambridge Union debate claims politics is an honorable profession. Wonder who bought their swimming pool?—CBU-FM.

●—Recommended.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

TEAM CAPTAIN

In the King Cotton Regional held in Lubbock, Texas, the winners of the Open Pairs were Craig Janitschke and Jan Janitschke of Denver.

An interesting slam was played in the tournament. One good plan for success was not enough; only the declarers who had a contingency plan in reserve were able to take 12 tricks.

North had a difficult choice over two hearts and chose to temporize in diamonds and show spade support later. When South cue bid to show a fine hand, North then felt obliged to jump in spades to show his fine trump holding.

West led two high hearts and declarer ruffed the second lead. A quick count of winners revealed a dummy reversal plan. Declarer could ruff dummy's losing hearts with his high trumps and use dummy's trumps to draw the outstanding trumps. This plan would produce three trumps, three heart ruffs and three top tricks in each minor suit for 12 tricks and a slam. All that was needed was a normal 3-2 break in the trump suit.

Declarer's plan was a good one but before committing himself by ruffing any more hearts, declarer took the precaution of playing the ace and another trump to dummy. When West discarded, the original plan had to go into the wastebasket and another plan substituted.

Had declarer drawn trumps and hoped for clubs to break, he would have had another loser East's four clubs would stop the suit and the slam would have been lost.

Declarer's only chance was for East to hold three or more clubs. After winning the second trump lead in dummy, getting the bad news, declarer cashed three high clubs and ruffed his fourth club in dummy. A diamond to declarer's king provided the entry to draw East's trumps and the slam was made.

Sometimes it's possible to make either dummy or declarer's hand the master hand. As today's layout shows, why not delay any firm commitment until one possibility is eliminated?

Alberni short of time

By JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — An earlier decision of School District 70 to join the North Island Community College may well go by the board following a public meeting on the matter this week.

It was these alternatives that the meeting was called to discuss, since it had been established in the past few months that Port Alberni would not be allowed to set up its own community college as it had hoped, and that the immediate affiliation with one of the other two colleges was in order since the education department was prepared to legislate the city into one or the other unless it soon made up its own mind on the matter.

Dean Goard, the education department's adviser on new colleges, told the meeting that credits offered by the new North Island college would be transferable.

The University of Victoria, he said, has officially approved the North Island courses, and credits for those presumably would be transferable to any other major B.C. college.

Trustee Gillian Trumper, who heads the college committee which made the recommendation for affiliating with North Island, said the main consideration of the committee was the fact that the college had a "decentralized philosophy" which would provide Port Alberni with a greater opportunity to decide on its own agenda and control its own costs.

"I am concerned that Malaspina's preoccupation with its new $12 million campus might give the establishing of satellite facilities in Port Alberni a very low rank in its priorities," she said.

Trustee Mark Mosher, who had previously been neutral on the matter, said he now had "grave apprehensions" about joining the North Island.

"Just as there is a core at Malaspina, but a well-developed one, so will there be a core campus for North Island, probably in Campbell River where the administrative centre will be," he said.

As he saw it, the only difference is that one college is established and the other is not.

Trustee Jim Spencer said that he had nothing against the educational qualities at Malaspina, but was concerned about the costs to be local taxpayers. Projected costs, he said, were 1.45 mills for joining North Island and 2.34 mills for joining the Nanaimo college.

Judging from the questions and comments from the small but vocal crowd, the idea of joining an "unknown" North Island college held little appeal.

One man even voiced the opinion that there should be no college here at all.

"This is a working town, and for once something should be done for the workers," he said.

ISLAND BRIEFS

'Lost hunter' walks out

A hunter reported missing earlier Thursday came out of the woods before RCMP in Duncan could organize a search party.

Jim Bennett and Rene LaRivire, both of Chemainus, went hunting at 7:30 a.m. in the Shawnigan Lake area, making plans to rendezvous at 1 p.m. LaRivire was at the meeting point on time and, when Bennett failed to show up 30 minutes later, went to a MacMillan-Bloedel logging camp to report his friend missing.

Duncan RCMP began organizing a search but Bennett walked out just before 5 p.m.

DUNCAN — Hydro in a large area of this city and surrounding areas will be turned off for two hours Sunday morning so B.C. Hydro crews can do repairs.

Duncan Hydro manager Dave Pidcock said the crews will replace insulators which have been vandalized at the city substation.

NANAIMO — Colin Richard Kelly, 23, of 1580 Bartlett Street, will be sentenced in Provincial Court on Sept. 25 after admitting to two breakins earlier this month.

He pleaded guilty to breaking into a medical clinic at 350 Albert Street on Sept. 6 and to breaking into another medical building, at 1515 Dufferin Crescent, the following morning.

Court was told that in each case Kelly was looking for drugs.

Judge Stan Wardill has ordered a pre-entence report, Kelly was remanded in custody to await sentence.

DUNCAN — Casting will start Monday for the January Players' Fall season production of The Thieves Carnival.

Anyone interested in trying out is invited to attend the readings for the 13 parts at 7:30 p.m. in the Duncan United Church hall on Jubilee Street.

COURTENAY — Introduction of an hourly bus service in this area has been suggested by a member of the Comox Valley Resource Society.

Society director Ernie Dalskog said the new board, to be elected Sept. 28, should make the transportation issue its priority.

He said population is increasing from Fanny Bay north and avenues must be explored which will lead to an hourly bus service in the Comox Valley.

CHEMAINUS — The 75th birthday of the 36-bed hospital here will be commemorated Saturday with an open house. Organized by the women's auxiliary at the Chemainus General, which is also celebrating its 75th year, the open house will start at 2 p.m. and run until 4.

NANAIMO — A 16-year-old boy as been charged with attempted murder and causing bodily harm with intent to wound in connection with a knifing incident here Tuesday.

The charge was laid after a Nanaimo woman complained to police that she and her 20-year-old daughter were attacked by an intruder in their residence early Tuesday.

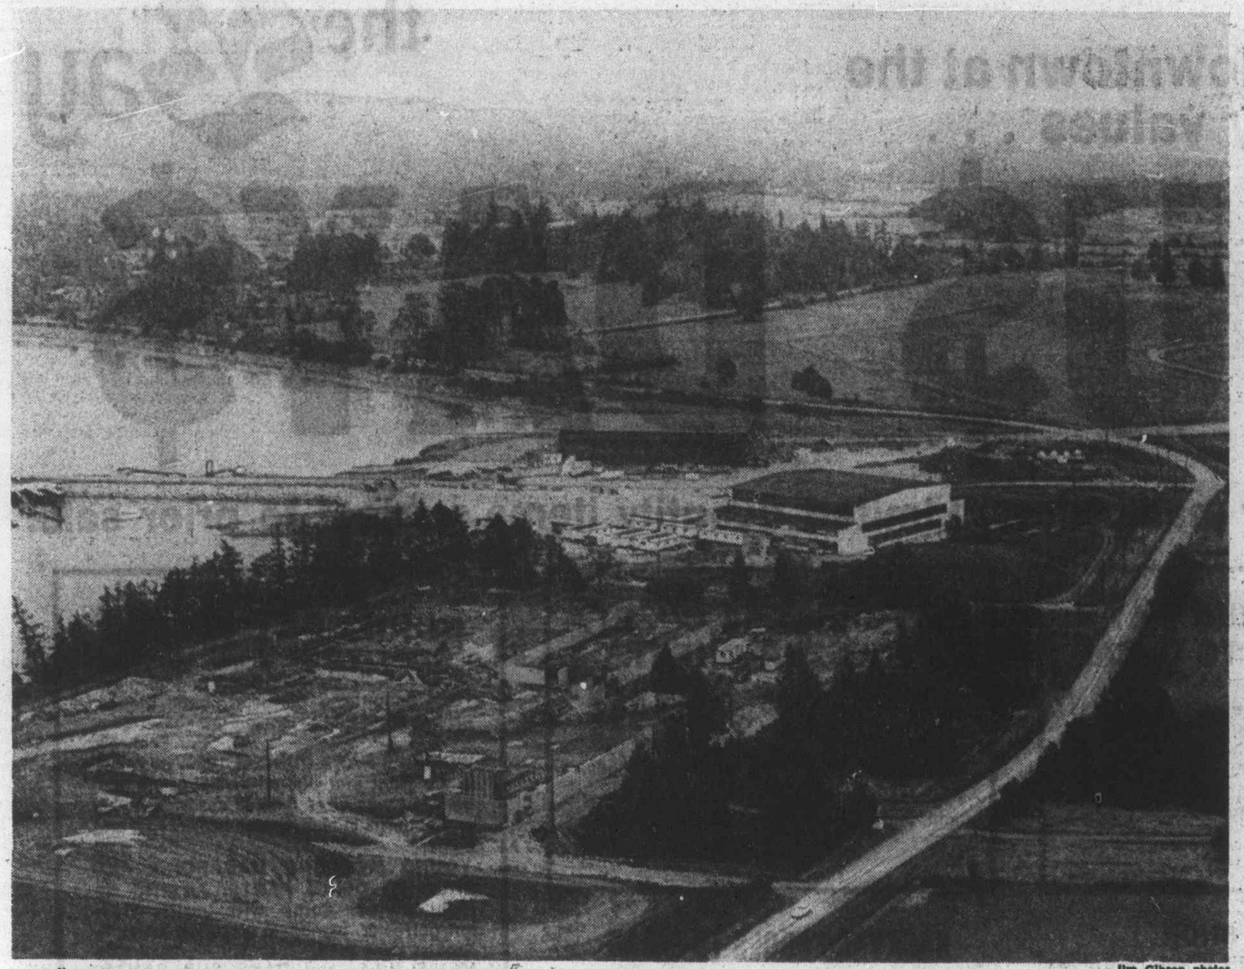
NANAIMO — Inspector D. J. Webster, officer in charge of Nanaimo RCMP detachment, announced Thursday that a full-time drug squad would be formed here this fall.

Webster said the appointments come after several years of requests from the community. "Headquarters has now sanctioned the appointments," he said.

The lobbying for a drug squad began in Nanaimo about four years ago when Mayor Frank Ney, then MLA for this area, released a report from the attorney-general's department showing Nanaimo had the highest ratio of drug addicts of any city in Canada.

Shortly after, a mayor's drug committee was formed and studied the local problem for many months. The outcome of that work was a request for a drug squad.



Pat Bay work progresses

Face of Patricia Bay is changing both on land and water. Construction, left, continues toward 1978 completion of $20 million Institute of Ocean Sciences, one of three across Canada. Three miles out in Saanich Inlet the year-old CEPEX experiment (controlled ecosystem pollution experiment) continues. Floating white rings by laboratory barge, below, hold 30-metre deep plastic bags to which pollutants are added by University of British Columbia scientists studying industrial pollution.

Pen probe still in wraps

OTTAWA (CP) — The penitentiary service has received the report of an inquiry into the death of a hostage during a disturbance at the British Columbia Penitentiary in June, but it will not be made public immediately.

The solicitor-general's department noted that charges of non-capital murder laid against three prisoners were still before the court.

"Therefore, it would be most inappropriate at this time to make any comment or disclosure on the proceedings of the commission of inquiry until matters now before the court have been resolved," the department said.

Mary Stinhauser, a 32-year-old prison classification officer, died of gunshot wounds June 11 when prison guards rushed a room where she and 15 other hostages were being held by three knife-wielding prisoners. The prisoners — Dwight Lucas, Andy Bruce and Claire Wilson — later were charged with her death.

Fire chief praises 'real good save'

Damage was estimated Thursday at $20,000 to $25,000 in a Wednesday night fire at McMorran's Pavilion, 5109 Cordova Bay, and Saanich fire chief Harold Gains said it could have been much higher but for "a real good save" by his men.

Gains said the last people in the front area, Eror's Family Restaurant, left at about 10:45 p.m. and did not notice a cigarette smoldering in the upholstery of a booth. The alarm was turned in at 11:35 after flames had gone up to the ceiling and mushroomed into the attic.

The chief said much of the restaurant equipment was lost in the blaze but firemen acted so quickly that the rest of the building did not even receive smoke damage. He said the main ballroom probably will be available for an event scheduled tonight.

Gains said he was notified at home after the main crew went to the scene. By the time he got dressed and drove to the pavilion, "the fire wasn't just under control — it was out."
